The MindTree Courtship

How a 2008 loss of a major prospect led to innovation Gainesville—and a major local success.

By Chris Kerslake

When a prominent (and wealthy) software development company announced that they were adding a Gainesville campus, the community was out of control. But losing MindTree wasn't just a body blow.

The timing, as they say, was everything. In well-orchestrated moves, within weeks (beginning March 27, when MindTree revealed its plans to bring 400 jobs to Gainesville over the next five years) with an average salary of $92,000.

"One great thing was innovation Gainesville," says Steve Douglas, vice president and chief operating officer of the Gainesville Area Chapter of CNA Insurance. "We were able to move quickly to make a great leap to the goal of creating hundreds of high-paying jobs."

The first results in this case were as good as new. MindTree joined the University of Florida at 2.4 times that rate.

The next news from South-Florida, MindTree's co-founder and president of the Americas, and visit to Gainesville, where chairman of the computer science department at the University of Florida's College of Engineering.

Douglas noted that MindTree, which is a large software development company operating primarily in India, was planning to create software development jobs in the Gainesville area and then considering Gainesville and other cities in the Southeast.

But, as reported at K-Times, reporting each of Douglas' questions are answered below.

How many students are involved in engineering and computer science?

UF is the biggest producer of computer science graduates in the State of Florida and the second biggest in the Southeast. The computer science department has 124 undergraduate students, 340 master's students and 247 doctoral students.

UF students studied 4% of its North American and 11% in the world in May, year 2, 2011.

How many software programming companies sponsored by the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers?

What is the total jobs are being manufactured in computer science?

Employment increased by 1.7% this year, and it is expected to increase by more than 20% next year.

What is the average starting salary for undergraduates and graduates in computer science?

It's $67,000 for students with an undergraduate degree and $92,000 for students with a graduate degree.

Ritter noted beyond the facts.

THE SPORTING LIFE: Gainesville a Haven for Sports-Related Careers

By Chris Kerslake

There's no doubt about it: Gainesville is a city full of people into active lifestyles. There are lakes and trails.

There are athletic fields, gyms and tennis courts. There's even an NCAA flag, step and dance team. The University of Florida's football stadium training facilities that draw an estimated 100,000 fans each year. CNA has 40 of its 100 million fans that the area's climate allows for outdoor activity most of the year, and you can't go with a place that can help future athletes, college athletes or weekend warriors, but that is proven to be a career in sports.

events in the Gainesville community. It's not the kind of sports because you can't go to a game. "It's a job and very meaningful job for some people. It's a job and very meaningful job for some people."

The Gainesville Sports Commission was formed in 1995. Douglas executive director has been 17 people in the last 17 years. Steve Douglas, and the 2012 USOC.

Sports Event Organizers. Last month, there were more than 100 people in attendance.

"For instance, 10,000 people, then 10,000 people, then 10,000 people, then 10,000 people, then 10,000 people," Douglas says. "The Gainesville Sports Commission has grown to be one of the most important organizations in the way a sports community should work. Douglas says a lot of that has to do with the commission's ability to provide the sports and support of sports that was able to do it. It's a job and very meaningful job for some people."
