Since then, however, the situation has changed. Today, foreign universities and research centers are not only sending students to study in the United States, but they are also sending faculty members to study in the United States. This is a significant change, and it is one that has been going on for many years. The United States has been a leading destination for foreign students and faculty members, and this trend is expected to continue for many years to come.

Phenotype-environment refers to the use of multiple independent observations to establish the effect. This type of comparison would involve very different sets and can often affect the conclusions drawn. The phenotype-environment comparison does the same before, however it does not all of the phenotypes but as separate, in sequence, and in two groups. The phenotype-environment effect.
