Plant Evolution Karl J. Niklas, 2016-08-12 Although plants comprise more than 90% of all visible life and land plants and algae collectively make up the most morphologically physiologically and ecologically diverse group of organisms on earth books on evolution instead tend to focus on animals This organismal bias has led to an incomplete and often erroneous understanding of evolutionary theory Because plants grow and reproduce differently than animals they have evolved differently and generally accepted evolutionary views as for example the standard models of speciation often fail to hold when applied to them Tapping such wide ranging topics as genetics gene regulatory networks phenotype mapping and multicellularity as well as paleobotany Karl J Niklas s Plant Evolution offers fresh insight into these differences Following up on his landmark book The Evolutionary Biology of Plants in which he drew on cutting edge computer simulations that used plants as models to illuminate key evolutionary theories Niklas incorporates data from more than a decade of new research in the flourishing field of molecular biology conveying not only why the study of evolution is so important but also why the study of plants is essential to our understanding of evolutionary processes Niklas shows us that investigating the intricacies of plant development the diversification of early vascular land plants and larger patterns in plant evolution is not just a botanical pursuit it is vital to our comprehension of the history of all life on this green planet

The Joy of Science Richard A. Lockshin, 2007-11-05 Scientists have great passion What could be more exhilarating than to go to work every day feeling as if you were once again a nine year old called up to the stage to help the magician with his trick To be a researcher is to always be in the position of having the chance to see how the trick works No wonder that many researchers feel that each new day is the most exciting day to be a scientist It therefore is not surprising that scientists have such trouble communicating with non scientists It is difficult for the scientist to understand a life not focused on the desire to understand But the differences are not that Everyone wants to understand that is one of the factors that make us human The difference is more that scientists limit their definition of comprehension to specific rules of logic and evidence These rules apply and are used in everyday life but often with less rigor or restrictions on evidence
