World History: Connections to Today Elisabeth Gaynor Ellis, Pearson/Prentice Hall, 2003-12 Women, Love, and Commodity Culture in British Romanticism Professor Daniela Garofalo, 2013-05-28 Offering a new understanding of canonical Romanticism Daniela Garofalo suggests that representations of erotic love in the period have been largely misunderstood Commonly understood as a means for transcending political and economic realities love for several canonical Romantic writers offers instead a contestation of those realities Garofalo argues that Romantic writers show that the desire for transcendence through love mimics the desire for commodity consumption and depends on the same dynamic of delayed fulfillment that was advocated by thinkers such as Adam Smith As writers such as William Blake Lord Byron Sir Walter Scott John Keats and Emily Bront engaged with the period's concern with political economy and the nature of desire they challenged stereotypical representations of women either as self-denying consumers or as intemperate participants in the market economy Instead their works show the importance of women for understanding modern economics with women's desire conceived as a force that not only undermines the political economy's emphasis on productivity growth and perpetual consumption but also holds forth the possibility of alternatives to a system of capitalist exchange Challenge of Freedom
