Neuropsychology Gerald Goldstein, Paul David Nussbaum, Sue R. Beers, 2013-06-29 In this volume of the series Human Brain Function Assessment and Rehabilitation we cover the area of how brain function is assessed with behavioral or neuropsychological instruments These assessments are typically conducted by clinical neuropsychologists or behavioral neurologists and so we made an effort to present the somewhat differing approaches to these two related disciplines Clinical neuropsychologists are psychologists who typically utilize standardized tests while behavioral neurologists are physicians who generally assess brain function as part of the clinical neurological evaluation Both approaches have much to offer The basic assumption of neuropsychological assessment is that the brain is the organ of behavior and therefore the condition of the brain may be evaluated with behavioral measures Neuropsychological tests are those measures found by research to be particularly sensitive to alterations in brain function An adequate neuropsychological test is a procedure that can be related to some objective measure of alteration in brain function Over the years these objective measures have changed but generally involve documentation through direct observation of brain tissue or through histological pathological neuroimaging or other laboratory procedures The methods described in the first two volumes of this series describe the neuroimaging procedures that are often used in the validation of neuropsychological tests

Handbook of Nonverbal Assessment R. Steve McCallum, 2003 The goal of this Handbook is to describe the current assessment strategies and related best practices to professionals who serve individuals from diverse cultures or those who have difficulty using the English language It will be a valuable resource for school psychologists special educators speech and hearing specialists rehabilitation counselors as well as graduate level students of school psychology and child and family psychology

Contemporary Intellectual Assessment Dawn P. Flanagan, Erin M. McDonough, 2022-12-05 In one volume this authoritative reference presents a current comprehensive overview of intellectual and cognitive assessment with a focus on practical applications Leaders in the field describe major theories of intelligence and provide the knowledge needed to use the latest measures of cognitive abilities with individuals of all ages from toddlers to adults Evidence based approaches to test interpretation and their relevance for intervention are described The book addresses critical issues in assessing particular populations including culturally and linguistically diverse students gifted students and those with learning difficulties and disabilities in today's educational settings
