Concrete in the Service of Mankind Ravindra Dhir, Neil Henderson, 2003-09-02 Concrete is ubiquitous and unique found in every developed and developing country Indeed there are no alternatives to concrete as a volume construction material for infrastructure This raises important questions of how concrete should be designed and constructed for cost effective use in the the short and long term and to encourage further radical development Equally it must be environmentally friendly during manufacture in an aesthetic presentation in structures and in the containment of harmful materials The central theme of the Congress is Concrete in the Service of Mankind under which five self contained Conferences each dealing with a particular aspect are planned The Congress offers opportunity to discuss how to improve and extend this service to mankind using responsible exploitation underwritten by sound technical understanding and research base It brings together the shared skills and experience of the various disciplines involved in the construction process world wide This major publication continues the tradition established by Dundee University of organizing major international conferences every three years dealing with some aspect of concrete and also the link between Spon and Dundee University for publication of the proceedings This book should be of interest to concrete technologists contractors civil engineers consultants

Materials Jaap Schijve, 2006-03-16 This book is primarily a textbook It is written for engineers students and teachers and it should also be useful for people working on various topics related to fatigue of structures and materials The book can be used for graduate and undergraduate courses and for short courses for people already working in the industry laboratories or research institutes Furthermore the book offers various comments which can be useful to research workers in order to consider the practical relevance of laboratory investigations and to plan future research An important theme of the book is the understanding of what happens in the material of a structure in service if the structure is subjected to a spectrum of cyclic loads Knowledge of the fatigue mechanism in the material and how it can be affected by a large variety of practical conditions is essential for dealing with fatigue problems The designer of a dynamically loaded structure must design against fatigue This includes not only the overall concept of the structure with related safety and economic aspects but also questions on detail design joints production and material surface quality At the same time the designer must try to predict the fatigue performance of the structure This requires a knowledge of the various influencing factors also because predictions on fatigue have their limitations and shortcomings Similar considerations arise if fatigue problems occur after a long period in service when decisions must be made on remedial actions Automotive Repair Industry United States.
