The Baltic Sea Region in Transition Marcus Reckermann,Markus Meier,Martin Stendel,2021-06-23 Educator Stress Teresa Mendonça McIntyre,Scott E. McIntyre,David J. Francis,2017-08-28 This book brings together the most current thinking and research on educator stress and how education systems can support quality teachers and quality education It adopts an occupational health perspective to examine the problem of educator stress and presents theory driven intervention strategies to reduce stress load and support educator resilience and healthy school organizations The book provides an international perspective on key challenges facing educators such as teacher stress teacher retention training effective teachers teacher accountability cyber bullying in schools and developing healthy school systems Divided into four parts the book starts out by introducing and defining the problem of educator stress internationally and examining educator stress in the context of school education system and education policy factors Part I includes chapters on educator mental health and well being stress related biological vulnerabilities the relation of stress to teaching self efficacy turnover in charter schools and the role of culture in educator stress Part II reviews the main conceptual models that explain educator stress while applying an occupational health framework to education contexts which stresses the role of organizational factors including work organization and work practices It ends with a proposal of a dynamic integrative theory of educator stress which highlights the changing nature of educator stress with time and context Part III starts with the definition of what constitute healthy school organizations as a backdrop to the following chapters which review the application of occupational health psychology theories and intervention approaches to reducing educator stress promoting teacher resources and developing healthy school systems Chapters include interventions at the individual individual organizational interface and organizational levels Part III ends with a chapter addressing cyber bullying a new challenge affecting schools and teachers Part IV discusses the implications for research practice and policy in education including teacher training and development In addition it presents a review of methodological issues facing researchers on educator stress and identifies future trends for research on this topic including the use of ecological momentary assessment in educator stress research The editors concluding comments reflect upon the application of an occupational health perspective to advance research practice and policy directed at reducing stress in educators and promoting teacher and school well being Autism: The Movement (Sensing) Perspective a Decade Later Elizabeth B. Torres,Jonathan T. Delafield-Butt,Vikram K. Jaswal,Susan Crawford,Ashok

Srinivasan,Brittany Travers,2025-08-19 A decade ago in 2013 the Research Topic Autism the Movement Perspective proposed the radical idea that using movement and its sensations could help us better understand the many complex layers of autism spectrum disorders Inspired by earlier work from other fields the work positioned front and center approaches from neuromotor control infusing the research with new computational ideas to study autism across the human lifespan Through the lens of motor variability as a form of kinesthetic reafference causal inference and predictive codes the Research Topic brought together a group of researchers parents practitioners and self advocates to rethink autism as sensory motor differences contributing to the emergence of powerful coping mechanisms that advanced our understanding of how the human brain develops and functions Today with new improvements in biosensing technologies and neuroscience and the embodied and affective psychology on which development is based we revisit this Research Topic approaching autism anew through a modernized lens of precision aimed at enabling socio motor agency
