The books Multiliteracies in Motion and Language and Power highlight the difficulties theory encounters when practice progresses at a rapid pace. Theory also always comes after practice in science. In the field of physics, light had been around millennia before Einstein realized that it was traveling at constant speed. In the field of medicine, cancer, AIDS, and SARS existed long before doctors named them. In the field of technology, which is the context of this review, children have been doing non-linear thinking long before the term "Web 2.0" was first uttered.

The real problem with the two books under review is not that they contradict
