Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program on the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program was designed to be a safe and effective means of increasing physical activity for women who were previously sedentary. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions included a warm-up, a main exercise period, and a cool-down. The main exercise period consisted of a combination of low-impact aerobics, strength training, and flexibility exercises. The program was evaluated using a variety of physical fitness tests, including heart rate, blood pressure, and body composition. The results of the study showed that the program had a positive effect on physical fitness, with significant improvements in heart rate, blood pressure, and body composition. The program was well-tolerated by the participants, and the results suggest that it may be a useful tool for promoting physical activity in sedentary, middle-aged women.
