English-Only Instruction and Immigrant Students in Secondary Schools Lee Gunderson, 2017-09-25 This book is for teachers teacher educators school and district administrators policy makers and researchers who want to know about literacy cultural diversity and students who speak little or no English It offers a rich picture of the incredible diversity of students who enter secondary school as immigrants their abilities their needs and their aspirations The studies reported are part of a large longitudinal study of about 25 000 immigrant students in a district in which the policy is English only instruction These studies provide multiple views of the students lives and their success in schools where the language of instruction differs from the languages they speak with their friends and families explore the students views of teaching and learning describe the potential differences between the students views and those of their teachers look at issues related to students views of their identities as they work study and socialize in a new environment and examine different reading models designed to facilitate the learning of English as a second language ESL Educators and researchers will find the descriptions of students simultaneous learning of English and of academic content relevant to their view of whether instruction should be English only or bilingual For teachers who view multicultural education as an important endeavor this book may on occasion surprise them and at other times confirm their views The author does not attempt to develop a particular political viewpoint about which approach works best with immigrant students Rather the objective of the studies was to develop a full rich description of the lives of immigrant high school students enrolled in classes where the medium of instruction is English The reader is left to evaluate the results Paper Qualification Syndrome (PQS) and Unemployment of School Leavers John Oxenham,1982 The Skills Balancing Act in Sub-Saharan Africa Omar Arias,David K. Evans,Indhira Santos,2019-01-31

Despite strong recent economic growth Sub Saharan Africa has levels of economictransformation poverty reduction and skill development far below those of other regions Smart investments in developing skills aligned with the policy goals of productivity growth inclusion and adaptability can help to accelerate the region s economic transformation inthe 21st century Sub Saharan Africa s growing working age population presents a major opportunity toincrease shared prosperity Countries in the region have invested heavily in building skills public expenditure on education increased sevenfold over the past 30 years and more childrenare in school today than ever before Yet systems for building skills in this population havefallen short and these shortcomings significantly impede economic prospects In half of thecountries fewer than two in every three children complete primary school even fewer reachand complete higher levels of education Learning outcomes have been persistently poor leading to substantial gaps in basic cognitive skills literacy and numeracy among children young people and adults The literacy rate of the adult population is below 50 percent in manycountries functional literacy and numeracy rates are even lower Systemwide change is required to achieve significant progress Multiple agencies at thecentral and local levels are involved in skills development strategies making skills everyone s problem but no one s responsibility Policies and reforms need to build capacity for evidence based policies and create incentives to align the behaviors of all stakeholders with the pursuitof national skills development goals The Skills Balancing Act in Sub Saharan Africa Investing in Skills for Productivity Inclusivity and Adaptability lays out evidence to inform the policy choices that countries will make in skillinvestments Each chapter addresses a set of specific questions drawing on original analysisand synthesis of existing studies to explore key areas How the skills appropriate to each stage of the life cycle are acquired and whatmarket and institutional failures affect skills formation What systems are needed for individuals to access these skills including familyinvestments private sector institutions schools and other public programs How those systems can be strengthened How the most vulnerable individuals those who fall outside the standard systemsand have missed critical building blocks in skills acquisition can be supported Countries will face trade offs often stark ones that will have distributional impacts and a bearing on their development path Committed leaders reform coalitions and well coordinated policies are essential for taking on the skills balancing act in Sub Saharan Africa
