In the media, working class immigrant women are often depicted uneducated, conniving and inarticulate. My life, however, as an SFSU graduate student and as a working class immigrant Pilipina American who has supported herself since age 18—speak of a different experience. Watching both my parents slave over 12 hour working days, seven days a week in menial labor jobs just to make rent for a one bedroom apartment was my reality as a child. My parents' work ethic and daily struggles continue to serve as an inspiration for me to strive for a relevant and meaningful education and profession—and to be the first in my family to receive a graduate degree.

Thanks to my parents' encouragement, I was able to graduate cum laude at UCLA with a Psychology and Asian American Studies double major and an Education minor. In my four years at UCLA, I was a five time recipient of the Provost's Honors List. My most rewarding experiences in college, however, were outside of the classroom walls. As a graduating senior I was also recognized with the UCLA Chancellor Service Award, the Pilipino Graduation Enlightenment Award and A. Magazine's Top 10 Student Leader in the Nation for initiating my own community service tutorial project in South Central, Los Angeles – a poor, urban and underserved community. The project was called Project S.E.T. (South Central Evening Tutorial) and we mentored and tutored the children of immigrant parents who were attending evening adult school four nights a week.

International Practices to Promote Budget Literacy Harika Masud, Helene Pfeil, Sanjay Agarwal, Alfredo Gonzalez Briseno, 2017-08-09 Budget literacy is defined as the ability to read decipher and understand public budgets to enable and enhance meaningful citizen participation in the budget process It is comprised of two main parts i a technical understanding of public budgets including familiarity with government spending tax rates and public debt and ii the ability to engage in the budget process comprising of practical knowledge on day to day issues as well as an elementary understanding of the economic social and political implications of budget policies the stakeholders involved and when and how to provide inputs during the annual budget cycle Given that no international standards or guidelines have been established for budget literacy education to date this book seeks to address this gap by taking stock of illustrative initiatives promoting budget literacy for youth in selected countries. The underlying presumption is that when supply side actors in the budget process governments simplify and disseminate budget information for demand side actors citizens this information will then be used by citizens to provide feedback on the budget. However since citizens are often insufficiently informed about public budgets to constructively participate in budget processes one way to empower them and to remedy the problem of budget illiteracy is to provide budget literacy education in schools to youth helping them evolve into civic minded adults with the essential knowledge needed for analyzing their government's fiscal policy objectives and measures and the confidence and sense of social responsibility to participate in the oversight of public resources. This book elaborates on approaches learning outcomes pedagogical strategies and assessment approaches for budget literacy education and presents lessons that are relevant for the development improvement or scaling up of budget literacy initiatives.

Gatecrashers Katherine Jentleson, 2020-04-07 After World War I artists without formal training crashed the gates of major museums in the United States diversifying the art world across lines of race ethnicity class ability and gender. At the center of this fundamental reevaluation of who could be an artist in America were John Kane Horace Pippin and Anna Mary Robertson Grandma Moses. The stories of these three artists not only intertwine with the major critical debates of their period but also prefigure the call for inclusion in representations of American art today. In Gatecrashers Katherine Jentleson offers a valuable corrective to the history of twentieth century art by expanding narratives of interwar American modernism and providing an origin story for contemporary fascination with self taught artists.

Identity-Focused ELA Teaching Richard Beach, Anthony Johnston, Amanda Haertling Thein, 2015-03-05. Countering the increased standardization of English language arts instruction, requires recognizing and fostering students' unique identity construction across different social and cultural contexts. Drawing on current sociocultural theories of identity construction, this book posits that students construct multiple identities through use of five identity practices: adopting alternative perspectives, exploring connections across people and texts, negotiating identities across social worlds, developing agency through critical analysis, and reflecting on long-term identity trajectories. Identity Focused ELA Teaching features classroom activities teachers can use to put these practices into action in ways that re-center implementing the Common Core State Standards case study profiles of students and classrooms from urban, suburban and rural schools, adopting these practices and descriptions of how teachers both support students with this instructional approach and share their own identity construction experiences with their students. It demonstrates how as students acquire identity-focused practices through engagements with literature, writing, drama and digital texts, they gain awareness of the ways exposure to different narratives, beliefs and perspectives serves to mediate their own and others' identities, leading to different ways of being and becoming over time.
