Reading and Remedial Reading A. E. Tansley, 2022-05-29 First published in 1967. Reading and Remedial Reading describes the normal reading programme in the school where the author taught and the diagnosis and treatment of acute difficulties in learning to read. The work deals mainly with so-called educationally maladjusted children, many of whom showed signs of possible damage to the central nervous system, but Mr Tansley believes that the methods and techniques given are applicable to all children irrespective of levels of intelligence who are experiencing difficulties to learn. The results achieved are most encouraging and have been tested by numerous expert visitors from this country and abroad. This is a helpful guide to a large number of people: staffs and students in University Education Departments, educational psychologists, remedial teachers, special school teachers, primary school teachers and medical officers in the School Health Service.

The Really Practical Guide to Primary English Diana Bentley, 1999. Beyond Initial Reading John Potts, 2012. This book investigates children's use of language and considers its implications for children's learning at home and at school. The author compares the language used by children from different social environments at the ages of three, five and seven and considers the different approaches that children take towards their school experiences. The book discusses the problems of studying children's use and development of language and, in doing so, looks at the implications of a number of theories. It uses theory in order to establish a useful framework which will help teachers to become aware of the skills that children have established in using language when they come to school.

The aim of the Delton Silent Reading Test is to achieve greater consistency in mid-year and mid-program assessments for special students who were originally assessed with the Schonell Silent Reading Test. This study reports the development of the Delton Silent Reading Test and the validation process undertaken to determine the equivalence of content, readability, levels, comprehension strategies, questioning strategies and student test scores on the Delton and Schonell tests Results indicate that there is no significant difference between matched test items on the Delton and Schonell Silent Reading Tests for item content readability levels and reading and questioning strategies Results from correlations of student test scores indicated that test scores did not differ significantly $r = .93$ p
