Drinking Water Quality and Human Health Patrick Levallois,Cristina Villanueva

Belmonte,2019-04-04 The quality of drinking water is paramount for public health Despite important improvements in the last decades access to safe drinking water is not universal The World Health Organization estimates that almost 10% of the population in the world do not have access to improved drinking water sources Among other diseases waterborne infections cause diarrhea which kills nearly one million people every year mostly children under 5 years of age On the other hand chemical pollution is a concern in high income countries and an increasing problem in low and middle income countries Exposure to chemicals in drinking water may lead to a range of chronic non communicable diseases e g cancer cardiovascular disease adverse reproductive outcomes and effects on children s health e g neurodevelopment among other health effects Although drinking water quality is regulated and monitored in many countries increasing knowledge leads to the need for reviewing standards and guidelines on a nearly permanent basis both for regulated and newly identified contaminants Drinking water standards are mostly based on animal toxicity data and more robust epidemiologic studies with accurate exposure assessment are needed The current risk assessment paradigm dealing mostly with one by one chemicals dismisses the potential synergisms or interactions from exposures to mixtures of contaminants particularly at the low exposure range Thus evidence is needed on exposure and health effects of mixtures of contaminants in drinking water Finally water stress and water quality problems are expected to increase in the coming years due to climate change and increasing water demand by population growth and new evidence is needed to design appropriate adaptation policies This Special Issue of International Journal of Environmental Research and Public Health IJERPH focuses on the current state of knowledge on the links between drinking water quality and human health

Performing Animals Karen Raber,Monica

Mattfeld,2017-09-07 From bears on the Renaissance stage to the equine pageantry of the nineteenth century hunt animals have been used in human orchestrated entertainments throughout history The essays in this volume present an array of case studies that inspire new ways of interpreting animal performance and the role of animal agency in the performing relationship In exploring the human animal relationship from the early modern period to the nineteenth century Performing

Animals questions what it means for an animal to perform examines how conceptions of this relationship have evolved over time and explores whether and how human understanding of performance is changed by an animal's presence The contributors discuss the role of animals in venues as varied as medieval plays natural histories dissections and banquets and they raise provocative questions about animals agency In so doing they demonstrate the innovative potential of thinking beyond the boundaries of the present in order to dismantle the barriers that have traditionally divided human from animal From fleas to warhorses to animals that perform even after death this delightfully varied volume brings together examples of animals made to act in ways that challenge obvious notions of performance The result is an eye opening exploration of human animal relationships and identity that will appeal greatly to scholars and students of animal studies performance studies and posthuman studies In addition to the editors the contributors are Todd Andrew Borlik Pia F Cuneo Kim Marra Richard Nash Sarah E Parker Rob Wakeman Kari Weil and Jessica Wolfe

Children's Literature and the Posthuman Zoe Jaques,2015-02-11 An investigation of identity formation in children's literature this book brings together children's literature and recent critical concerns with posthuman identity to argue that children's fiction offers sophisticated interventions into debates about what it means to be human and in particular about humanity's relationship to animals and the natural world In complicating questions of human identity ecology gender and technology Jaques engages with a multifaceted posthumanism to understand how philosophy can emerge from children's fantasy disclosing how such fantasy can build upon earlier traditions to represent complex issues of humanness to younger audiences Interrogating the place of the human through the non human whether animal or mechanical leads this book to have interpretations that radically depart from the critical tradition which in its concerns with the socialization and representation of the child has ignored larger epistemologies of humanness The book considers canonical texts of children's literature alongside recent bestsellers and films locating texts such as Gulliver's Travels 1726 Pinocchio 1883 and the Alice books 1865 1871 as important works in the evolution of posthuman ideas This study provides radical new readings of children's literature and demonstrates that the genre offers sophisticated interventions into the nature boundaries and dominion of humanity
