

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health of middle-aged women. The study was conducted in a community-based setting. The participants were 30 middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a training group or a control group. The training group participated in a 12-week program of aerobic exercise, strength training, and flexibility exercises. The control group did not participate in any exercise program. The physical fitness and health of the participants were assessed at baseline and at the end of the 12-week program. The results of the study showed that the training group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness and health than the control group at the end of the 12-week program. The findings of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness and health of middle-aged women.
