International Economics Lawrence A. Officer, 2012-12-06 International Economics is unique despite the existence of numerous books of the same title It is true that no one volume can capture the entire state of the art of the subject but individuals can apply their own perspectives to identify crucial issues in the development of the field Therefore rather than instructions to prepare surveys of subfields within international economics the contributors to this book were informed as follows Your essay should present an affirmative but constructively critical look at your subject It is not meant to be a survey Rather your task is to pinpoint crucial areas of development to offer a critical evaluation of what's going on in the field and where it might go Your contribution would be your own personal statement of how you see things It should be written at the professional level Beyond these general guidelines you may develop your essay as you see fit How much of international economics should be assigned to each author and how many contributions the book should have required careful consideration Traditionally international economics has been divided into pure theory and monetary theory suggesting a simple division of the field but this dichotomy has been overturned by the emergence of literature that overlaps both theories An opposite approach would have been to separate international economics into twelve to fifteen areas each with a contributor This procedure divides the field into too many parts and consequently overlapping threads of development would be ignored

Risk and the Regulation of Uncertainty in International Law Monika Ambrus, Rosemary Rayfuse, Wouter Werner, 2017-10-27 Increasingly international legal arrangements imagine future worlds or create space for experts to articulate how the future can be conceptualized and managed With the increased specialization of international law a series of functional regimes and sub regimes has emerged each with their own imageries vocabularies expert knowledge and rules to translate our hopes and fears for the future into action in the present At issue in the development of these regimes are not just competing predictions of the future based on what we know about what has happened in the past and what we know is happening in the present

Rather these regimes seek to deal with futures about which we know very little or nothing at all futures that are inherently uncertain and even potentially catastrophic futures for which we need to find ways to identify conceptualise manage and regulate risks the existence of which we can possibly only speculate about This book explores how the future is imagined articulated and managed across the various fields of international law including the use of force maritime security international economic and environmental law and human rights It investigates how the future is construed in these various areas how the costs of risk risk regulation risk assessment and risk management are distributed in international law the effect of uncertain futures on the subjects of international law and the way in which international law operates when faced with catastrophic or existential risk

Environmental Process and Production Methods (PPMs) in WTO Law David Sifonios, 2018-01-30 This book examines the conditions under which PPM measures may be adopted under WTO law de lege lata and de lege ferenda It analyses in detail the complex case law in this field and its evolution in the last 25 years as well as the many doctrinal debates around PPM measures and their relevance in the light of the evolution of case law both under the GATT and the TBT Agreement Further it also suggests an original approach to the interpretation of the relevant provisions of the GATT and the TBT Agreement in the context of PPM measures The PPM issue has been one of the most debated topics in the trade and environment debate Even though the US Shrimp case showed that PPM measures are not prohibited per se under the GATT many questions remain unanswered when it comes to the precise conditions under which environmental PPM measures are justifiable under WTO law for example in the field of trade measures relating to climate change mitigation efforts natural resources management policies and biodiversity conservation measures
