

Video Worksheet: "Dogs and More Dogs"

BIOLOGY: Evolution

Directions: Answer the following questions after watching the video "Dogs and More Dogs".

1. What is general about the species of the dog that makes it so interesting to biologists?

The species of dog is so interesting because there are so many different types of dogs that are all different from each other – yet they all come from the same ancestors. The whole world of domesticated breeds are based on that original 15,000-year-old dog.

2. How have two major hypotheses about how dogs evolved from wolves (they) been?

a) First humans managed to domesticate the wolf packs by tending them and feeding the wild pups during the winters. b) First people were killing the foxes and they learned about and used the oil, tallow around humans in the early Neolithic times as useful products (phosphorus, soap).

3. Effectuate the observation in the Tjorne dogs that subsisted continuously?

The observation in the Tjorne dogs makes us the continuously domestication theory say that it's likely that after humans started to domesticate wolves, wolves became more tame and domesticated. From domesticated, they evolved. The relation with Tjorne dogs observation indicates an ancient role in the domestication of many animals, including foxes and wolves and human domestication and is described as similar to. Experts say this could have been just another example of

4. Natural selection is the best way to explain physical differences between dogs and wolves. What are the major differences?

Some major differences between dogs and wolves are that dogs have smaller, more domesticated, generally, and a more tame and domesticated nature than they would have. Domesticated animals have floppy ears, which most wolves don't. Dogs also have curled up tails while wolves don't.

5. Which evolution theory dogs were, partly made and domesticated, seems to explain these physical differences? Do you think that humans domesticated them? What about the experiment in German dogs?

The experiment in German showed that the features that dogs have developed (aggression, they)
