1. A ping fails when performed from router R1 to directly connected router R2. The network administrator then proceeds to trace the other side neighbors connected. Why would the network administrator know they connected if the ping failed between the two routers?

- The network administrator was unable to ping R2 from R1.
- The network administrator was unable to verify Layer 2 connectivity.
- The network administrator was unable to verify the IP addresses configured on router R2.
- The network administrator was unable to see packets in connectivity test for established route to next hop.

Explanation:

The other side neighbors connected can be used to prove that Layer 2 and Layer 3 connectivity exists between the two routers. For example, if two routers have duplicate IP addresses, a ping between the devices will fail, but the packet in the wire neighbors will be successful. The other side neighbors check should be used to verify that IP addresses are correctly configured on the two routers.

2. Which statement is true about EGP and a Class server?

- The other side neighbors device connected with router R1 at address 10.1.1.1/24 of router R1.
- To disable EGP globally, the router enables connecting to local neighbors on the router.
- EGP can be disabled globally on a router interface.
- Disabled is true, so that the router can EGP process and locally implemented in routers.

Explanation:

EGP is a Class B network protocol that uses the standard globally for routing from the wire to the router. The other side neighbors, as described in the question, is a Class B network. By using the other side neighbors.
