Adolescent Group Therapy

Lucille Gordon,Robert V. Heckel,George R. Holmes,1991-09-30 This book offers a health oriented integrative approach to adolescent group therapy George R Holmes and his associates believe that promoting social competency in each adolescent group member is central to successful therapy The enablement of interpersonal skills neutralizes the environmentally sponsored psychopathology that adolescents use to survive The authors also emphasize the co therapy relationship They offer recommendations for supervising trainee therapists and for applying their model to other contexts such as high schools The authors discuss strategies developed in their clinical work covering such issues as scapegoating silence and withdrawal They explore how processes roles and meaningful issues change over the life of the group Social competency should be the main focus they argue it is essential to nurturing self parenting skills and a healthy identity The co therapy relationship the interaction between co therapists and among co therapists and group members also greatly determines therapeutic change The book includes recommendations for supervising trainee therapists and for applying this model to other contexts such as high schools Adolescent Group Therapy will be of interest to students and to teachers and professionals in psychology counseling vocational rehabilitation social work nursing education and child and adolescent psychiatry

Personal Styles in Neurosis (RLE: Group Therapy) T.M. Caine,O.B.A. Wijesinghe,D.A. Winter,2014-09-19 Originally published in 1981 the inadequacies of the medical model for the understanding and psychological treatment of neuroses were widely recognized A number of alternative approaches had arisen in response but most of the models were theoretical and little experimental support was documented One of the most pressing needs at the time was for a system of classification which could predict the behaviour of different types of neurotic patient under different treatments and thus provide a framework for the selection of patients for small group psychotherapy and for behaviour therapy The authors of this title develop such a framework involving the matching of patient therapist and treatment according to certain adjustment strategies such as direction of interest conservatism convergent divergent thinking openness to inner experience and control The personal style of an individual is defined by these strategies and by the patient s expectations from treatment The authors collected a considerable amount of original research material over many years and their evidence demonstrates the fundamental importance of personal style in treatment allocation and response The new approach which they propose will be of interest not only to academic psychologists but to those in the mental health professions actively engaged in psychotherapy and behaviour therapy
