Plant Fibers Hans-Ferdinand Linskens, John F. Jackson, 2012-12-06 Modern Methods of Plant Analysis When the handbook Modern Methods of Plant Analysis was first introduced in 1954 the considerations were 1 the dependence of scientific progress in biology on the improvement of existing and the introduction of new methods 2 the difficulty in finding many new analytical methods in specialized journals which are normally not accessible to experimental plant biologists 3 the fact that in the methods sections of papers the description of methods is frequently so compact or even sometimes so incomplete that it is difficult to reproduce experiments These considerations still stand today The series was highly successful seven volumes appearing between 1956 and 1964 Since there is still today a demand for the old series the publisher has decided to resume publication of Modern Methods of Plant Analysis It is hoped that the New Series will be just as acceptable to those working in plant sciences and related fields as the early volumes undoubtedly were It is difficult to single out the major reasons for success of any publication but we believe that the methods published in the first series were up to date at the time and presented in a way that made description as applied to plant material complete in itself with little need to consult other publications Contributing authors have attempted to follow these guidelines in this New Series of volumes

Nanoporous Materials III M. Jaroniec, Abdel Sayari, 2002-05-15 Nanoporous Materials III contains the invited lectures and peer reviewed oral and poster contributions to be presented at the 3rd Conference on Nanoporous Materials which will be hosted in Ottawa Canada June 2002 The work covers complementary approaches to and recent advances in the field of nanostructured materials with pore sizes larger than 1nm such as periodic mesoporous molecular sieves M41S and FSM16 and related materials including clays carbon molecular sieves colloidal crystal templated organic and inorganic materials porous polymers and sol gels The broad range of topics covered in relation to the synthesis and characterization of ordered mesoporous materials are of great importance for advanced adsorption catalytic and separation processes as well as the development of nanotechnology The contents of this title are based on topics to be discussed by invited lecturers which deal with periodic mesoporous organosilicas stability and catalytic activity of aluminosilicate mesostructures electron microscopy studies of ordered materials imprinted polymers and highly porous metal organic frameworks The other contributions deal with tailoring the surface and structural properties of nanoporous materials giving a detailed characterization as well as demonstrating their usefulness for advanced adsorption and catalytic applications

Journal Chemical Society (Great Britain), 1927      Anais Da Academia Brasileira de Ciências Academia Brasileira de Ciências, 1983      Methods of the Alignment-Relay Technique for Nanosystems Monika Snowdon, 2021-11-08 This thesis addresses the problem of improving the alignment of carbon nanotubes CNTs in transistor applications taking a unique approach using iptycenes acting as molecular tweezers in combination with a liquid crystal solvent As part of a project to test the effectiveness of a multi step method the so called Alignment Relay Technique ART this work contributed evidence for the selectivity and stability of ART as well as providing the first proof of concept that ART can be used to create CNT field effect transistors FETs The thesis effectively explains and illustrates the chemical synthesis of the tweezers the concept and actualization of the technique the various factors observed to influence deposition and selectivity along with material fabrication using both photolithography and electron beam lithography This research advances knowledge of transistors and expands the applications of small organic molecules in the field of materials science Particular highlights of this thesis include an extensive review of ART its advantages and limitations development of new material chemistry methods for the optimization of semiconducting CNT selectivity and a comprehensive exploration of fabrication and characterization of CNTFETs for future applications
