1. Consent is the agreement of the patient to the proposed treatment. It is a legal requirement for the doctor to obtain the patient's consent before proceeding with any treatment. The patient must be of legal age and of sound mind to give consent. The doctor must explain the nature of the treatment, the risks and benefits, and the alternatives to the patient. The patient must understand the information and make a voluntary decision. The doctor must document the patient's consent in the medical record.

1. The state has a strong interest in the health and safety of its citizens. The state has a duty to protect its citizens from harm, and this duty extends to the regulation of the food supply. The state has a strong interest in ensuring that the food supply is safe and healthy, and this interest is reflected in the state's food safety laws.

Following recently published research in the United States, a consensus and recommendation for a period of 12 months from the original date of recovery by the consumer. During the period of recovery the producer/processor should make every effort to inform and educate the consumer. The producer may require from government regulatory authorities a list of and contact information for individual consumers. I would like to present to you a report by the Institute for Health Policy Studies on a questionnaire survey of consumers' attitudes to the use of mass media to communicate with the public and health professionals.
