Operations and Productivity

C H A P T E R

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. The text suggests four reasons to study O&M. We want to understand (1) how people organize themselves for productive enterprise, (2) how goods and services are produced, (3) what operations managers do, and (4) this costly part of our economy and most enterprises.
2. Possible responses include: Adam Smith (work specialization/division of labour), Charles Babbage (work specialization/division of labour), Frederick W. Taylor (scientific management), Walter Shewart (statistical sampling and quality control), Henry Ford (moving assembly line), Charles Sorensen (moving assembly line), Frank and Lillian Gilbreth (motion study), Eli Whitney (standardization).
3. See references in the answer to question 2.
4. The actual charts will differ, depending on the specific organization the student chooses to describe. The important thing is for students to recognize that all organizations require, to a greater or lesser extent, (a) the three primary functions of operations, finance/accounting, and marketing; and (b) that the emphasis or detailed breakdown of these functions is dependent on the specific competitive strategy employed by the firm.
5. The answer to this question may be similar to that for question 4. Here, however, the student should be encouraged to utilize a more detailed knowledge of a past employer and indicate on the chart additional information such as the number of persons employed to perform the various functions and, perhaps, the position of the functional areas within the overall organization hierarchy.

6. The basic functions of a firm are marketing, accounting/finance, and operations. An interesting class discussion: "Do all firms/organizations (private, government, not-for-profit) perform these three functions?" The authors' hypothesis is yes, they do.

7. The 10 decisions of operations management are product design, quality, process, location, layout, human resources, supply-chain management, inventory, scheduling (aggregate and short term), maintenance. We find this structure an excellent way to help students organize and learn the material.

8. Four areas that are important to improving labour productivity are: (1) basic education (basic reading and math skills), (2) diet of the labour force, (3) social overhead that makes labour available (water, sanitation, transportation, etc.), and (4) maintaining and expanding the skills necessary for changing technology and knowledge, as well as for teamwork and motivation.

9. Productivity is harder to measure when the task becomes more intellectual. A knowledge society implies that work is more intellectual and therefore harder to measure. Because Canada (and many other countries) are increasingly "knowledge" societies, productivity is harder to measure. Using labour hours as a measure of productivity for a postindustrial society vs. an industrial or agriculture society is very different. For example, decades spent developing a marvelous new drug or winning a very difficult legal case on intellectual property rights may be significant for post-

Learning at the Crossroads of Theory and Practice Piet Van den Bossche, Wim H. Gijssels, Richard G. Milder, 2012-03-19 Core concepts in education are changing For example professional performance or expertise is not uniquely the fruit of specialist knowledge acquired at professional schools but the sum of influences exerted by a complex web of continuous learning opportunities for which an individual is well or ill prepared by their schools and their workplace The key contributory factors to professional expertise are how professional schools connect to professional practice how schools prepare graduates for continuous learning and how the workplace endorses continuous development Thus the question this volume addresses how to design learning and working environments that facilitate the integration of these three elements is at the heart of contemporary pedagogical theory The authors also ask a second vital question how do we educate learners that go on to maximize their life s learning opportunities by regulating their own ongoing learning Learning at the Crossroads of Theory and Practice argues that with the theory of learning at a crossroads this is an unprecedented opportunity for learning about learning The book sheds light on different elements of this challenge integrating theory and practice in business education generating and fully exploiting workplace learning opportunities and enriching our classrooms by coupling theoretical knowledge with the richness of real life experience

The Information Front Timothy Balzer, 2011 In wartime capturing the hearts and minds of the citizenry is arguably as important as victory on the battlefield The Information Front explores the Canadian military s use of public relations units to manage news during the Second World War These specialized units were responsible for providing sufficient and positive news coverage to Canadians at home This fascinating study traces the transformation of an emergent PR organization into an efficient publicity machine It also scrutinizes news coverage and PR activities during major Canadian operations at Dieppe Sicily and Normandy to reveal how the military used censorship and propaganda to rally support for the
