

Chapter 4 Case Study: Personal Finance, Inc. Data-Pooling Summary

Below is the summary of information that resulted:

Personal Finance, Inc. owns and operates Mutual Funds in a direct relationship with the client.

Since about 1980, and that company is planning an international expansion by opening a new "subsidiary" in the British area. Personal Finance's president, Charles Lott, noted an IT requirement.

Since 1980, he has developed an information system for that new facility. During the project, Lott will work closely with Greg Lewis, who will manage the new operation.

Background

During requirements modeling for the new system, Lott had met with several senior managers and, as several Personal Finance executives. He conducted a series of interviews, reviewed company reports, discussed business operations, analyzed the British data processing facilities, and identified a complex of tasks and billing transactions. Lott's objective was to develop a list of system requirements for the proposed system.

The system must be able to maintain, without redundancy, both full and partial. Full members have access to all activities. Limited members are restricted in that they have no access to the system's database. In other words, they are not allowed to change privileges. Changes to membership and services are recorded in exchange slips, which is signed by the member.

At the end of each day, each entry and change are entered into the British data processing system. The British data processing system is a complex system that is used to process all data. Each day, each entry is processed and stored in the system. Personal Finance's data processing system is a complex system that is used to process all data. Each day, each entry is processed and stored in the system.

At the end of the month, the data manager will British data processing system as a means of providing summary to the Personal Finance management. Changes, a summary of activities, and
