

Lab: Population Ecology Graphs

ECOLOGY

Introduction: The ability to interpret graphs and tables is a necessary skill in science but also finds use in everyday life. In articles or textbooks you are likely to find graphs and tables. Understanding the article's message depends heavily on being able to interpret many different types of graphs and tables. In science tables are used to provide information. Frequently one quantity in a table depends upon or is related to another. Data from tables can be graphed to aid interpretation. Graphs give a visual representation of the data that helps to reveal regularities and patterns.

Procedure: Answer the following questions regarding the graphs below.

I. Bacteria reproduce by splitting in half. It takes about 20 minutes, under ideal conditions, for a bacteria population to double.

Analysis Questions

1. Describe what is happening to the population of bacteria.
2. Is the rate of population growth constant or variable?
3. What do we call this type of growth?

II. White pine became extinct in northern Minnesota during the last period of glaciation, although it remained in southern climates such as Virginia. Once the glaciers began to retreat, the white pine began to expand northward again; it reappeared in northern Minnesota about 9400 years ago, this is time 0 in the graph

Carpenter, Timothy D. Comar, 2013 There is a gap between the extensive mathematics background that is beneficial to biologists and the minimal mathematics background biology students acquire in their courses The result is an undergraduate education in biology with very little quantitative content New mathematics courses must be devised with the needs of biology students in mind In this volume authors from a variety of institutions address some of the problems involved in reforming mathematics curricula for biology students The problems are sorted into three themes Models Processes and Directions It is difficult for mathematicians to generate curriculum ideas for the training of biologists so a number of the curriculum models that have been introduced at various institutions comprise the Models section Processes deals with taking that great course and making sure it is institutionalized in both the biology department as a requirement and in the mathematics department as a course that will live on even if the creator of the course is no longer on the faculty Directions looks to the future with each paper laying out a case for pedagogical developments that the authors would like to see
