

Learning Objectives Define what birth, death, and life expectancy are. Explain why the number of births and deaths varies, and growth rates.

Types of Population Change		Change	Impact
Population Growth		An increase in population
Population Change	Births	An increase in the number of births
	Deaths	A decrease in the number of deaths
	Life expectancy	An increase in the average number of years a person is expected to live
	Immigration	An increase in the number of people moving into a country

Lesson Summary

Describing Populations

Birth rate is the number of births per 1,000 people in a population. It is calculated by dividing the number of births by the population and multiplying by 1,000.

Death rate is the number of deaths per 1,000 people in a population. It is calculated by dividing the number of deaths by the population and multiplying by 1,000.

Life expectancy is the average number of years a person is expected to live. It is calculated by dividing the total number of years lived by the population and multiplying by 1,000.

Immigration is the number of people moving into a country.

Emigration is the number of people moving out of a country. It is calculated by dividing the number of people moving out by the population and multiplying by 1,000.
