Field Manuals United States. War Department,1948

List and Index of War Department Publications United States. War Department, 1946 Near-Field Antenna Measurements Vadim Serafimovich Kalashnikov, Maxim Yurievich Ponomarev, Oleg Yurievich Platonov, Victor Vasilievich Shubnikov, Mark Ilyich Rivkin, Artem Yurievich Shatrakov, Yury Grigorievich Shatrakov, Oleg Ivanovich Zavalishin, 2021-04-27

This book is useful both for those who want to get initial information on the measurement of the antenna parameters and for specialists directly involved in the experimental determination of the antenna parameters from the results of measuring the amplitude phase distribution in the near zone of the antennas. Currently the near field method is the most common one for antenna measurements. In most books an academic approach is given to the issue under consideration and it is difficult to use them for the direct organization of measurements. In many others specific narrow issues are considered that are accessible to understanding only by highly qualified engineers and readers. The purpose of this book is to get rid of the above disadvantages by offering the reader a more accessible exposition and formulas by which appropriate computer programs can be written with minimal effort. The contents of this book allow interested specialists to be not only users of the near field measuring facilities but also help in understanding the principles of their work. This book is intended for engineers and specialists whose activities are related to experimental testing of radio characteristics of complex antenna systems especially near field measurements and is also useful as a textbook for senior students in the field of radioelectronics and radiophysics.
