The ability to effectively communicate in a globalized world shapes the economic social and democratic implications for the future of P 12 students Digitally mediated communication in an inclusive classroom increases a student s familiarity and comfortability with multiple types of media used in a wider technological culture However there is a need for research that explores the larger context and methodologies of participatory literacy in a digital educational space Participatory Literacy Practices for P 12 Classrooms in the Digital Age is an essential collection of innovative research on the methods and applications of integrating digital content into a learning environment to support inclusive classroom designs While highlighting topics such as game based learning coding education and multimodal narratives this book is ideally designed for practicing instructors pre service teachers professional development coordinators instructional facilitators curriculum designers academicians and researchers seeking interdisciplinary coverage on how participatory literacies enhance a student s ability to both contribute to the class and engage in opportunities beyond the classroom Rawls, Citizenship, and

Education Victoria Costa,2010-09-13 This book develops and applies a unified interpretation of John Rawls theory of justice as fairness in order to clarify the account of citizenship that Rawls relies upon and the kind of educational policies that the state can legitimately pursue to promote social justice Costa examines the role of the family as the first school of justice and its basic contribution to the moral and political development of children It also argues that schools are necessary to supplement the education that families provide teaching the political virtues that support just social institutions The book also examines the questions of whether civic education should aim at cultivating patriotic feelings and how it should respond to the deep cultural pluralism of contemporary democratic societies Civic Education in the Twenty-First Century

Donald M. Gooch,Michael T. Rogers,2015-09-18 Imagine an America where politicians governmental institutions schools new technologies and interest groups work together to promote informed engaged citizens Civic Education in the Twenty First Century brings together scholars from various disciplines to show how such a United States is possible today Inspired by Alexis de Tocqueville s analysis of American democracy in the early 1800s this edited volume represents a multidimensional evaluation of civic education in its new and varied forms While some lament a civics crisis in America today Civic Education in the Twenty First Century raises hope that we can have an informed and active citizenry We find the activities of a number of politicians government institutions schools and interest groups as promising developments in the struggle to educate and engage Americans in their democracy New technologies and new innovations in civic education have laid the foundation for a revitalized American civic ecology With Civic Education in the Twenty First Century we call for the United States to make these practices less isolated and more common throughout the county The volume is broken into three major sections First there are four chapters exploring the history and philosophical debates about civic education particularly with respect to its role in America s educational institutions Then the second section provides seven groundbreaking inquiries into how politicians and political institutions can promote civic education and engagement through their routine operations As some examples this section explores how politicians through campaigns and judiciaries through community programs enhance civic knowledge and encourage civic engagement This section also explores how new technologies like the Internet and social media are increasingly used by government institutions and other entities to encourage a more politically informed and engaged citizenry Finally the third section contains six chapters that explore programs and practices in higher education that are enhancing civic education engagement and our knowledge of them From the virtual civics campus of Fort Hayes State to citizens academies throughout the country this section shows the possibilities for schools today to once again be civics actors and promoters
