Nepal is the 2nd richest country in water resource in the world, possessing about 2.27% of the world water resource (CBS 1999). Despite this fact planned water supply was stated only in the fourth plan (1970-1975). The national coverage of water supply system was only about 4% in 1970. A separate institution, the Department of Drinking Water Supply and Sewerage (DWSS) was established during that period. By the end of water supply and sanitation decade (1990), the coverage substantially increased to 36% of the total population, with the rural population and urban population at 33% and 67% respectively. The recent Between Census Households Information, Monitoring and Evaluation System (BCHIMES) report-2000 indicates water coverage at 78% for rural and 92.3% for the urban population (Shrestha, 2003).

Sanitation facility is very poor condition having only 29% national coverage and issue on water quality has not been given proper attention (Shrestha et.al, 2203). Rural communities continue to use the most convenient source of water irrespective of quality. Regular outbreaks of water borne epidemics and increasing number of patients being admitted to hospitals due to water related diseases indicates that only supplying of drinking water is not sufficient to improve public health status unless continued effort is made both on water supply and sanitation.

Nepal water resources are considerable with surface run-off in the order of 200 km<sup>3</sup> annually. In general, there is very little rainfall from November to January. In addition to surface water, Nepal's ground water resources are also extensive.

In Nepal, the guideline value for national drinking water quality standard has been suggested by Pyakural (1994) and Task Force (1995)

numerous factors including illumination object shape surface properties scene context and observer characteristics Traditional methods of previewing conventional 2D prints overlook this complexity This thesis addresses this challenge by focusing on two types of materials semitransparent polymers commonly used in 3D printing and goniochromatic colorants employed in printing to introduce unique effects unattainable with conventional inks for 2D printing For semitransparent materials we developed an empirical function to represent colour based on sample thickness enabling efficient digital representation Additionally we adapted a colour measuring device to identify two key material parameters absorption and scattering coefficients essential for accurate colour reproduction Goniochromatic materials such as thin film coated mica particles are slightly more complicated and less predictive in terms of their final colour appearance Although not yet used in 3D printing these particles used in conventional printing introduce colour variation while rotating the print We found that goniochromatic properties can be expressed with an empirically found function after collecting angle dependent light reflecting properties of the sample We used this function and showed how prints with goniochromatic materials can be efficiently previewed on a computer monitor

Rethinking Racism Jennifer S. Trainor, 2008-11-04 In Rethinking Racism Emotion Persuasion and Literacy Education in an All White High School Jennifer Seibel Trainor proposes a new understanding of the roots of racism one that is based on attention to the role of emotion and the dynamics of persuasion This one year ethnographic study argues against previous assumptions about racism demonstrating instead how rhetoric and emotion as well as the processes and culture of schools are involved in the formation of racist beliefs Telling the story of a year spent in an all white high school Trainor suggests that contrary to prevailing opinion racism often does not stem from ignorance a lack of exposure to other cultures or the desire to protect white privilege Rather the causes of racism are frequently found in the realms of emotion and language as opposed to rational calculations of privilege or political ideologies Trainor maintains that racist assertions often originate not from prejudiced attitudes or beliefs but from metaphorical connections between racist ideas and nonracist values These values are reinforced even promoted by schooling via emotioned rules in place in classrooms in tacit unexamined lessons rituals and practices that exert a powerful though largely unacknowledged persuasive force on student feelings and beliefs about race Through in depth analysis of established anti racist pedagogies student behavior and racial discourses Trainor illustrates the manner in which racist ideas are subtly upheld through social and literacy education in the classroom and are thus embedded in the infrastructures of schools themselves It is the emotional and rhetorical framework of the classroom that lends racism its compelling power in the minds of students even as teachers endeavor to address the issue of cultural discrimination This effort is continually hindered by an incomplete understanding of the function of emotions in relation to antiracist persuasion and cannot be remedied until the root of the problem is addressed Rethinking Racism calls for a fresh approach to understanding racism and its causes offering crucial insight into the formative role of schooling in the perpetuation of discriminatory beliefs In addition this highly readable narrative draws from white students own stories about the meanings of race in their learning and their lives It thus provides new ways of thinking about how researchers and teachers represent whiteness Blending narrative with more traditional forms of ethnographic analysis Rethinking Racism uncovers the ways in which constructions of racism originate in literacy research and in our classrooms and how these constructions themselves can limit the rhetorical positions students enact
