Wages, and the Quality of Jobs Raymond Robertson,Drusilla Brown,Ga lle Le Borgne Pierre,Maria Laura Sanchez-Puerta,2009-07-17 Since the early 1990s most developing economies have become more integrated with the world s economy Trade and foreign investment barriers have been progressively lifted and international trade agreements signed These reforms have led to important changes in the structures of these economies The labor markets have adjusted to these major changes and workers were required to adapt to them in one way or another In 2006 the Social Protection Unit of the World Bank launched an important research program to understand the impact that these profound structural changes have had on workers in developing countries Globalization Wages and the Quality of Jobs Five Country Studies presents the findings and insights of this important research program In particular the authors present the similar experiences of low income countries with globalization and suggest that low income countries working conditions have improved in the sectors exposed to globalization However Globalization Wages and the Quality of Jobs also highlights concerns about the sustainability of these improvements and that the positive demonstration effects on the rest of the economy are unclear The empirical literature that exists although vast does not lead to a consensus view on globalization s eventual impact on labor markets Understanding the effects of globalization is crucial for governments concerned about employment working conditions and ultimately poverty reduction Beyond job creation improving the quality of those jobs is an essential condition for achieving poverty reduction Globalization Wages and the Quality of Jobs adds to the existing literature in two ways First the authors provide a comprehensive literature review on the current wisdom on globalization and present a micro based framework for analyzing globalization and working conditions in developing countries Second the authors apply this framework to five developing countries Cambodia El Salvador Honduras Indonesia and Madagascar This volume will be of interest to government policy makers trade officials and others working to expand the benefits of globalization to developing countries
