The Civil Rights Movement

The Civil Rights Movement is known as a period of time in the 1950s and 1960s that really began about 100 years earlier, after the American Civil War. The Civil Rights Movement occurred because of the desire for racial equality after the end of slavery in America.

After the Civil War, the American South was a very racist place. There were many segregation laws, which meant people were kept separate. There were separate schools for white and black children, separate public places, separate restaurants, and separate housing. People were not allowed to marry across race lines or to live in the same area.

But people in the South were not happy with the Segregation laws. They wanted to see a change. A black man named Martin Luther King Jr. was a leader in the movement. He was a minister and a powerful speaker. He led many peaceful protests and marches to demand equality for all people.

One of the first black children to integrate a white school in the South was Ruby Bridges. She was the only black child to go to an all-white elementary school in New Orleans, Louisiana, in 1960.
