Recent evidence has shown many ways in which our bodies and the environment influence cognition In this Research Topic we aim to develop our understanding of cognition by considering the diverse and dynamic relationship between the language we use our bodily perceptions and our actions and interactions in the broader environment There are already many empirical effects illustrating the continuity of mind body environment manipulating body posture influences diverse areas such as mood hormonal responses and perception of risk directing attention to a particular sensory modality can affect language processing signal detection and memory performance placing implicit cues in the environment can impact upon social behaviours moral judgements and economic decision making This Research Topic includes papers that explore the question of how our bodies and the environment influence cognition such as how we mentally represent the world around us understand language reason about abstract concepts make judgements and decisions and interact with objects and other people Contributions focus on empirical theoretical methodological or modelling issues as well as opinion pieces or contrasting perspectives Topic areas include perception and action social cognition emotion language processing modality specific representations spatial representations gesture atypical embodiment perceptual simulation cognitive modelling and perspectives on the future of embodiment Attention and Performance XVII Daniel Gopher,Asher Koriati,1999 In 1966 the first meeting of the Association for the Study of Attention and Performance was held in the Netherlands to promote the emerging science of cognitive psychology This volume is based on the most recent conference held in Israel thirty years later The focus of the conference was the interaction between theory and application The organizers chose the specific topic cognitive regulation of performance because it is an area where contemporary theories of cognitive processes meet the everyday challenges posed by human interactions with complex systems Present day technological systems impose on the operator a variety of supervisory functions such as input and output monitoring allocation of cognitive resources choice of strategies and regulation of cognitive operations A challenge for engineers and designers is to accommodate the cognitive requirements called for by these systems The book is divided into four sections the presentation and representation of information cognitive regulation of acquisition and performance consciousness and behavior and special populations aging and neurological disorders Contributors Nicole D Anderson Moshe Bar Lynn Bardell Alice E Barnes Irving Biederman Robert A Bjork Richard A Block Fergus I M Craik Heiner Deubel John Dunlosky Ido Erev Ronald Fisher John M Flach Barry Goettl Morris Goldsmith Daniel Gopher Lynn Hasher Okihide Hikosaka Larry L Jacoby Peter Kalocsai Colleen Kelley David E Kieras Roberta Klatzky Asher Koriath Arthur F Kramer Elisabetta Ladavas John L Larish Susan J Lederman John Long Cynthia P May Guilianna Mazzone Brian McElree David Meyer Satoru Miyauchi Neville Moray Louis Narens Thomas O Nelson Raymond S Nickerson Lynne Reder J Wesley Regian Ian Robertson Wolfgang Schneider Christian D Schunn Wayne Shebilske Shinsuke Shimojo Suresh Subramaniam Tom N Trainham Jehoshua Tsal Timothy A Weber Christopher Wickens Rose T Zacks Dan Zakay

Nursing Interventions for Infants, Children, and Families Martha Craft-Rosenberg, Janice Denehy, 2001 Designed for nurses and student nurses who work with this group this book covers interventions for infants and children as clients as well as the family as a client Each chapter examines the theoretical and research literature support for the invention and links to appropriate nursing diagnoses and outcomes A case study is presented to illustrate how each intervention is used in nursing practice Implications for further research are presented with the goal of advancing nursing science by stimulating further study of nursing interventions Range Target System (RTS) Operations Manual Andrew V. Barber,1990 Training-induced cognitive and neural plasticity Julia Karbach,Torsten Schubert,2013-07-08

Throughout the entire lifespan individuals are required to adapt to the demands of changing developmental contexts and dynamic social environments The potential modifiability of a person's cognitive and neural processes has been referred to as plasticity One way to assess cognitive and neural plasticity is to apply training interventions and to measure the related changes in trained and untrained situations Over the last decade the literature on the effects of cognitive interventions has been growing rapidly oftentimes focusing on the magnitude scope and maintenance of training related benefits and their transferability to untrained tasks and abilities Recent studies show that plasticity is present across the lifespan although it seems to decline in older age and that the long term maintenance as well as the transferability of training gains strongly depends on the type and the intensity of the intervention The findings from behavioral cognitive training research have also been accompanied by findings from cognitive neuroscience The related observations oftentimes point to training induced changes in a number of cortical and subcortical regions which may be responsible for the magnitude of training and of transfer effects Thus cognitive training may be a promising tool for understanding basic mechanisms of adaptive behavior on the one hand and for designing applications and interventions within different disciplines in psychology on the other hand However not all studies have consistently shown beneficial effects of cognitive training and some questions that are critical for our understanding of plasticity are still unanswered What are the key processes mediating training effects on laboratory tasks and in real world situations Which characteristics of the training process and of the training situations mediate transfer effects Are training effects subject to age related changes How are training induced neural changes in the brain related to improvements in cognitive performance How effective are training interventions in patients with specific cognitive impairments To what extent can age related cognitive decline be compensated by means of cognitive training The focus of this Research Topic is on training induced cognitive and neural plasticity across the lifespan The goal is to provide a broad scope of state of the art research in order to enhance our knowledge regarding the mechanisms underlying plasticity We invite contributions applying behavioral computational and neuroscientific approaches reviews and theoretical contributions Contributions are also welcomed if they focus on the implications of cognitive training in applied fields like educational and clinical settings as well as rehabilitation and training science Popular Science ,1955-06 Popular Science gives our readers the information and tools to improve their technology and their world The core belief that Popular Science and our readers share The future is going to be better and science and technology are the driving forces that will help make it better
