Achieving Nelson Mandela University? Sibongile Muthwa, Denver A. Webb, 2024-08-20 South Africa's higher education sector is rooted in the country's divided past A significant State driven restructuring from around 1997 to 2005 resulted in what is largely the current configuration of public universities But just over two decades later for a variety of reasons the higher education sector in South Africa appears beset with numerous challenges Nelson Mandela University is one of the public universities that emerged from the restructuring process The university is in an ongoing state of evolution of becoming It developed out of the amalgamation of the University of Port Elizabeth Port Elizabeth Technikon and incorporation of the Port Elizabeth campus of Vista University as Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University in 2005 In 2017 it was renamed Nelson Mandela University after the world renowned statesman rather than the metropolitan area in which the university is primarily located The renaming was conceptualised as more than a marketing opportunity to rebrand the university but as an opportunity to reorientate the university to reposition Nelson Mandela University as an engaged and socially embedded university in the service of society striving to be the academic expression of the values and ethos of its iconic namesake Endeavouring to be something greater and different from the norm imbues its strategy public statements and practices The determination to achieve Mandela University serves or is intended to serve as both an organising principle and a lodestar A cross section of writers from different backgrounds situates Nelson Mandela University within the contemporary historical moment from which it emerged and examines its subsequent evolution While Nelson Mandela University has performed the usual work expected of any university it has also sought to turn the university outwards to achieve a higher purpose framing itself as a values based university on a journey to become something else In Achieving Nelson Mandela University the university attempts to give an account of itself The book is an intellectual and scholarly reflection on where the university has come from and where it is seeking to go

Universities and Economic Development in Africa Nico Cloete, Tracy Bailey, 2011-04-01 Universities and economic development in Africa Pact academic core and coordination draws together evidence and synthesises the findings from eight African case studies The three key findings presented in this report are as follows 1 There is a lack of clarity and agreement pact about a development model and the role of higher education in development at both national and institutional levels There is however an increasing awareness particularly at government level of the importance of universities in the global context of the knowledge economy 2 Research production at the eight African universities is not strong enough to enable them to build on their traditional undergraduate teaching roles and make a sustained contribution to development via new knowledge production A number of universities have manageable student staff ratios and adequately qualified staff but inadequate funds for staff to engage in research In addition the incentive regimes do not support knowledge production 3 In none of the countries in the sample is there a coordinated effort between government external stakeholders and the university to systematically strengthen the contribution that the university can make to development While at each of the universities there are exemplary development projects that connect strongly to external stakeholders and strengthen the academic core the challenge is how to increase the number of these projects The project on which this report is based forms part of a larger study on Higher Education and Economic Development in Africa undertaken by the Higher Education Research and Advocacy Network in Africa HERANA

HERANA is coordinated by the Centre for Higher Education Transformation in South Africa Anchored in Place Leslie Bank, Nico Cloete, 2018-11-05 Tensions in South African universities have traditionally centred around equity particularly access and affordability historical legacies such as apartheid and colonialism and the shape and structure of the higher education system What has not received sufficient attention is the contribution of the university to place based development This volume is the first in South Africa to engage seriously with the place based developmental role of universities In the international literature and policy there has been an increasing integration of the university with place based development especially in cities This volume weighs in on the debate by drawing attention to the place based roles and agency of South African universities in their local towns and cities It acknowledges that universities were given specific development roles in regions homelands and towns under apartheid and comments on why sub national place based development has not been a key theme in post apartheid higher education planning Given the developmental crisis in the country universities could be expected to play a more constructive and meaningful role in the development of their own precincts cities and regions But what should that role be Is there evidence that this is already occurring in South Africa despite the lack of a national policy framework What plans and programmes are in place and what is needed to expand the development agency of universities at the local level Who and what might be involved Where should the focus lie and who might benefit most and why Is there a need perhaps to approach the challenges of college towns secondary cities and metropolitan centers differently This book poses some of these questions as it considers the experiences of a number of South African universities including Wits Pretoria Nelson Mandela University and especially Fort Hare as one of its post centenary challenges National Park Science Jane Carruthers, 2017-08-17 South Africa is renowned for its wildlife and environmental conservation in iconic national parks such as the Kruger one of the world's first formal protected areas However this is the first book to thoroughly analyse and explain the interesting and changing scientific research that has been accomplished in South Africa's national parks during the twentieth century Providing a fascinating and thorough historical narrative based on an extensive range of sources this text details the evolution of traditional natural history pursuits to modern conservation science in South Africa covering all research areas of conservation biology and all the national parks around the country It reveals the interaction between the international context government learning institutions and the public that has shaped the present conservation arena A complex story that will interest and inform not only those involved in conservation science of South Africa but worldwide Global Child Myriam Denov, Claudia Mitchell, Marjorie Rabiau, 2023-01-13 Armed conflicts continue to wreak havoc on children and families around the world with profound effects In 2017 420 million children nearly one in five were living in conflict affected areas an increase in 30 million from the previous year The recent surge in war induced migration referred to as a global refugee crisis has made migration a highly politicized issue with refugee populations and host countries facing unique challenges We know from research related to asylum seeking families that it is vital to think about children and families in relation to what it means to stay together what it means for parents to be separated from their children and the kinds of everyday tensions that emerge in living in dangerous insecure and precarious circumstances In Global Child the authors draw on what they have learned through their collaborative undertakings and highlight the unique features of participatory arts based and socio ecological approaches to studying war affected children and families demonstrating the collective strength as well as the limitations and ethical implications of such research Building on work across the Global South and the Global North this book aims to deepen an understanding of their tri pillared approach and the potential of this methodology for contributing to improved practices in working with war affected children and their families

Food Sovereignty and Urban Agriculture Anne Siebert, 2022-07-08 This book analyses the interplay of urban agriculture and food sovereignty through the innovative lens of the critical urban food perspective It focuses on the mobilisation of urban food producers as a powerful response to highly exclusionary dynamics in the agri food system including insufficient food access and disastrous land dispossessions This volume particularly aims to fill the gap in the current literature by engaging with food sovereignty discourses and movements in urban areas Related activism of urban food producers in the Global South remains underrepresented in practice and in literature Therefore this book engages with the lived realities of an urban agriculture initiative in George South Africa Building on theoretical notions of the right to the city and everyday forms of resistance the book illuminates how deprived food producers expose inequalities and propose alternatives The findings of in depth empirical research reveal that dwellers perceive farming as a mean to overcome historical segregation high food prices and unhealthy nutrition Hence they breathe life into food sovereignty in practice and suggest further alliances beyond the city The book will be of interest to scholars and students of alternative food politics agrarian transformation and food movements as well as rural urban intersections contribution to critical higher education studies specifically to graduate employability research and to capabilities and education research The book moves beyond the simplistic conception of alleged gaps in graduate skills and mismatches between employers and universities and instead provides an innovative multi dimensional and intersectional human capabilities conceptualisation of graduate employability The book challenges an individualised notion of employability instead locating employability issues in social and economic conditions and argues that employability choices cannot be divorced from inequality Qualitative and quantitative data from multiple case study universities in South Africa are used to explore the perceptions and experiences of diverse students lecturers support officers and employers regarding what each university is doing or should be doing to enhance graduate economic opportunities and contribute to inclusive development The book will be highly relevant to students scholars and researchers in the fields of education and sociology particularly those with an interest in graduate employability

Contextualising Rural Education in South African Schools, 2023-04-03 South Africa's democratic government inherited a divided and unequal system of education Under apartheid South Africa had nineteen different educational departments separated by race language geography and ideology This education system prepared learners in different ways for the positions they were expected to occupy in social economic and political life under apartheid and was funded and resourced in ways that favoured white people and disadvantaged black people who remain in the working class The newly elected democratic government in 1994 laid a foundation for a single national education system Twenty five years after the dawn of democracy education is still in a parlous state in many communities in South Africa but it is in the rural areas mainly in the former homelands that

African Studies in the Academy Mawere, Munyaradzi, Mubaya, Tapuwa R., 2017-08-09 For a long time African Studies as a discipline has been spearheaded by academics and institutions in the Global North This puts African Studies on the continent at a crossroads of making choices on whether such a discipline can be legitimately accepted as an epistemological discipline seeking objectivity and truth about Africa and the African peoples or a discipline meant to perpetuate the North's hegemonic socio economic political and epistemic control over Africa The compound question that immediately arises is Who should produce what and which space should African Studies occupy in the academy both of the North and of the South Confronted by such a question one wonders whether the existence of African Studies Centres in the Global North academics open opportunities for critical thinking on Africa or it opens possibilities for the emergence of the same discipline in Africa as a fertile space for trans disciplinary debate While approaches critical for the development of African Studies are pervasive in African universities through fields such as cultural studies social anthropology history sociology indigenous knowledge studies and African philosophy the discipline of African Studies though critical to Africa is rarely practiced as such in the African academy and its future on the continent remains bleak African Studies in the Academy is a testimony that if honestly and objectively practiced the crossroads position of African Studies as a discipline makes it a fertile ground for generating and testing new approaches critical for researching and understanding Africa It also challenges Africa to seriously consider assuming its legitimate position to champion African Studies from within These issues are at the heart of the present volume
