

The Separation of Powers

- Some basic ideas
 - No person may serve in two branches at the same time.
 - Different groups choose each branch.
 - There are staggered terms: the House is 2 years, the Senate is 6 years, the president is 4 years, and the courts are determined by good behavior.
- Sharing powers
 - The legislative branch
 - The executive branch
 - The president signs or vetoes. If not signed or vetoed in 10 days, it becomes law.
 - The president recommends measures, reports on the state of union, convenes, and adjourns.
 - Treaties require 2/3 Senate approval.
 - The vice president breaks Senate ties.
 - Executive orders, rules, and regulations can be overridden by Congress.
 - The judicial branch
 - Federal reviews rule on constitutional matters.
 - The executive branch
 - The legislative branch
 - The power of the purse is funding of the executive branch decisions, overrides the presidential veto by 2/3 House and Senate, and makes investigations.
 - The Senate confirms appointments made by the president.
 - It creates department agencies and defines jurisdictions.
 - They can remove officials through impeachment with a simple majority in the House and 2/3 in the Senate.
 - With foreign policy: it makes declarations of war and the Senate makes treaties.
 - The judicial branch
 - They hear the cases where the U.S., ambassadors, or public ministers are involved.
 - During impeachment, the Chief Justice presides at the presidential trial.
 - They exercise judicial review of executive orders, rules, and regulations.
 - The judicial branch
 - The legislative branch
 - They order and establish inferior courts and determine their jurisdiction.
