Activity 2: The flow of information in DNA & RNA & protein

Transcription is the process by which the information in a DNA double helix is copied into a single-stranded RNA molecule. This process is carried out by the enzyme RNA polymerase. The RNA molecule is then used as a template for the synthesis of a protein.

Translation is the process by which the information in an RNA molecule is used to synthesize a protein. This process is carried out by the ribosome. The ribosome is a complex of RNA and protein that reads the RNA sequence and assembles the corresponding amino acids into a polypeptide chain.
