September 2012 Mathematics Memorandum Grade 11:

From GCSEs to EBCs Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Education Committee, 2013 The Government's plans for replacing GCSEs with new English Baccalaureate Certificates in some subjects is trying to do too much too fast. Introducing several fundamental changes at the same time and to a tight timetable will jeopardise the quality of the reforms and may threaten the stability of the wider exam system. GCSEs need significant improvements in order to restore public confidence in the exam system but the Government still needs to make the case that the GCSE brand is so discredited that it is beyond repair. MPs are also concerned about the impact of the changes on subjects outside the English Baccalaureate where students will be taking GCSEs for some time to come according to the Government's plans. The report also questions how well the Government's proposals will serve lower attaining pupils who are often the most disadvantaged. There is no evidence that the proposed changes will help to tackle under achievement or narrow the attainment gap between the richest and poorest students any more effectively than GCSEs. The Government is also called upon to re think its plans for a Statement of Achievement specifically for lower attaining pupils. MPs agree that changes are needed to the way in which exams are run but they raise serious concerns about franchising subjects to exam boards. The report is critical of the Government's decision to abolish some GCSEs before publishing the outcomes of the National Curriculum Review and its proposed changes to the school accountability system. MPs also note the wide ranging stakeholder opposition to many of the Government's proposals.

Dream Town Laura Meckler, 2023-08-22 Winner of the Ohio Book Award Finalist of the Malott Prize for Recording Community Activism. Can a group of well intentioned people fulfill the promise of racial integration in America. In this searing and intimate examination of the ideals and realities of racial integration award winning Washington Post journalist Laura Meckler tells the story of a decades long pursuit in Shaker Heights Ohio and uncovers the roadblocks that have threatened progress time and again in housing in education and in the promise of shared community. In the late 1950s Shaker Heights began groundbreaking work that would make it a national model for housing integration. And beginning in the seventies it was known as a crown jewel in the national move to racially integrate schools. The school district built a reputation for academic excellence and diversity serving as a model for how white and Black Americans can thrive together. Meckler herself a product of Shaker Heights takes a deeper look into the place that shaped her investigating its complicated history and its ongoing challenges in order to untangle myth from truth. She confronts an enduring and troubling question if Shaker Heights has worked so hard at racial equity why does a racial academic achievement gap persist. In telling the stories of the Shakerites who have built and lived in this community Meckler asks What will it take to fulfill the promise of racial integration in America. What compromises are people of all races willing to make. What does success look like and has Shaker achieved it. The result is a complex and masterfully reported portrait of a place that while never perfect has achieved more than most and a road map for communities that seek to do the same.
