

Oregon Police Traffic Crash Report

The top of the page is an overview of the crash itself, including the date, time, and location. Take note of the difference between the time the crash occurred and the time the police arrived, which is sometimes hours later.

The next two sections describe the vehicles involved in the accident (Unit 1 and Unit 2). In a single-vehicle accident, the second vehicle is left blank; if more than two vehicles were involved, a supplemental page is attached for each vehicle.

The investigating officer lists each driver's name, license number, address, phone number, and the vehicle owner (if not the driver), as well as the insurance information and identifying information for the vehicle itself.

If the accident was a hit and run, it's noted here.

The report lists property damage to each vehicle, including the location of first impact and the amount of damage, as well as the severity of injury to the driver.

Below the vehicles, up to three passengers and/or witnesses are listed, with contact information and extent of injury as well as whether any safety devices were used. Any additional passengers will be listed on a supplemental page.
