Tanner 2 was darted yesterday by vet Murray Stokoe (in Dr Joubert's absence as he is in hospital for a broken ankle) for a follow up treatment. Here is what veterinarian Murray Stokoe had to say about his condition: "We did a follow up treatment with Tanner 2 yesterday and we're happy to report that his nose is healing very well although his leg is taking a little time to heal but improving every day. The main concern now is the extent of the damage to his eyes which we will only know over time. He is eating much better and should pick up strength and overall condition as time progresses." Below is a picture of Tanner 2 with Clint, another orphaned rhino from a poaching incident earlier this year at Kariega Game Reserve. The two rhino have bonded well and are being rehabilitated at Shamwari.

Rhino Poaching Janina Naef, 2016 Rhino horn is very popular in Asia as it is a status symbol and used as medicine That is one reason why the number of these animals is decreasing continuously In 2007 13 rhinos were poached in South Africa while in 2015 the number increased to 1175 rhinos This Matura Paper deals with problems of rhino poaching in South Africa It poses into the question if it is still possible to see rhinos in the future and examines what should be done to save this species from extinction Therefore 5 theses has been stated which consist of political financial protection measures and enlightenment of local and Asian people Thereby an interview has been conducted with a conservationist in addition to research in a volunteering project in South Africa regarding these theses The results prove the problems already stated If there are no changes in one of these problems the rhino doubtfully has a future

Africa's Threatened Rhinos Keith Somerville, 2025-01-14 Africa s surviving rhinos are under serious threat Poaching for their horns massive extermination by sports hunters in the nineteenth and first half of the twentieth century and progressive habitat loss have all driven black and white rhino close to the edge This book considers human interactions with these magnificent and enigmatic animals charting hunting for food and hides and then hunting for horn to meet external demand for this much coveted commodity as well as peaceful coexistence over the course of three millennia With only two females alive in a closely protected reserve in Kenya the Northern White Rhino is on the brink of extinction The Southern White Rhino was increasing in numbers but poaching in South Africa Botswana and Namibia has now reduced the population to fewer than 20 000 while Black Rhino are hovering around the 6 000 6 500 mark also with the danger of extirpation everywhere but in parts of eastern and southern Africa Many books have been written on poaching and the decline of the rhino often from a very personal engaged viewpoint This volume takes the reader into important new territory showing how human agency has led to the situation we now face Covering the history of commercial and sporting exploitation of rhino it brings the picture up to date with an overview of contemporary conservation and anti poaching operations This urgent work is a significant contribution to our understanding of wildlife on the African continent

Predictive Policing in an Endangered Species

Context Hildergerde Suzanne Koen, 2017 Approximately three rhinos are poached daily in South Africa Rhino poaching is a serious problem that affects not only the rhino population of South Africa but also the rhino population of the world South Africa has the largest rhino population and of those rhinos the largest number can be found in the Kruger National Park KNP The KNP has been hit the hardest by the poaching epidemic losing 1 175 rhinos in 2015 alone Two big challenges are the size of the park and the unknown locations of both the poachers and new poaching events The KNP is the size of a small country and there are simply not enough rangers to patrol this area effectively A costly solution would be to employ more rangers but a proposed alternative is to reduce the search space and thus ensure that the rangers are allocated to the high risk areas first A mathematical model was developed in the form of a Bayesian network BN to infer the most important factors contributing to poaching events and to model the rhino poaching problem This model can be used to predict the area in which a future poaching attack could take place and thereby reduce the search area of rangers The model also serves as a vehicle to enhance the understanding of the problem and encourage reasoning and discussion amongst decision makers The map of the KNP is divided into cells and each cell is given a poaching probability based on the outcome of the BN This probability map forms a heat map that can be shown to the control centre and rangers can then be sent to the respective hotspots on the map This is a proactive approach which is in stark contrast to the numerous reactive approaches attempted thus far This is the first BN modelling approach to the rhino poaching problem and it is also the first BN application to wildlife crime Previous applications of BN have only gone so far as environmental modelling but not wildlife crimes In this study the rhino poaching problem was shifted from a complex ill structured space to a position where researchers can begin to address the underlying problems by using a causal model as the vehicle for understanding the complex interplay between the factors affecting poaching events

Economic Incentives and Poaching of the One-Horned Indian Rhinoceros in Nepal Mahesh Poudyal, 2005 Despite a relatively successful conservation programme for the endangered one horned rhinoceros in the National Parks of the Terai region poaching remains one of the major threats to its survival in Nepal In recent years there has been an alarming rise in the number of rhinos poached over 100 rhinos were taken in and around the Royal Chitwan National Park RCNP between 1998 and 2003 Although rhino poaching levels are influenced by the price of rhino horn on the international black market amongst a host of other socio economic factors there have not been any attempts to study the reasons behind poaching in Nepal using econometric models developed and applied elsewhere This study uses econometric models to explain changes in the level of poaching in the RCNP over a 30 year period Factors that are thought to influence the number of rhinos poached in the RCNP include i rhino population ii effectiveness of anti poaching measures iii penalties for poaching iv availability of alternative economic opportunities i.e. opportunity costs of poaching and v the price of rhino horn The results indicate that anti poaching units APUs in their original organisational and operational form were highly successful in controlling the level of poaching in the RCNP Furthermore the availability of local economic opportunities seemed to reduce the level of poaching significantly However the penalties imposed on the convicted poachers were found to have little or no effect on the level of rhino poaching in the RCNP The results also indicate a sharp rise in the number of rhinos poached during the years of the Maoist insurgency in the country compared to the years before Although the analysis is still very simplistic it provides valuable insights into the factors that have affected the level of poaching in the RCNP over the years It is hoped that these insights will be helpful in formulating effective policies to tackle rhino poaching especially in and around the RCNP where Nepal's largest population of one horned rhinoceros is found

Saving the Last Rhinos Grant Fowlds, Graham Spence, 2019 What would drive a man to smuggle rhino horn back into Africa at great risk to himself This is just one of the situations Grant Fowlds has put himself in as part of his ongoing fight against poaching in order to prove a link between southern Africa and the illicit lucrative trade in rhino horn in Vietnam Shavings of rhino horn are sold as a snake oil cure for colds or impotence but a rhino's horn has no magical medicinal properties It is for this that rhinoceroses are being killed at an escalating rate that puts the survival of the species in jeopardy This corrupt illegal war on wildlife has brought an iconic animal to the brink of extinction Growing up on a farm in the eastern Cape of South Africa Grant developed a deep love of nature turning his back on hunting to focus on saving wildlife of all kinds and the environment that sustains both them and us He is a passionate conservationist who puts himself on the front line of protecting rhinos in the wild right now against armed poachers but in the longer term too through his work with schoolchildren communities and policymakers In 2016 the number of rhinos poached in South Africa stood at 1054 Department of Environmental Affairs In 2017 529 rhinos had been slaughtered by 24th July In the last nine years over 6100 rhinos have been poached in South Africa leaving fewer than 19000 white and 2000 black rhinos in the country The situation is critical
