Answer the following questions:

- 1.1 Describe the hydrologic cycle, components, and processes. The hydrologic cycle is a continuous cycle of water on Earth. It is driven by the sun, which causes evaporation of water from the surface of the ocean and land. The water vapor then condenses into clouds, which release precipitation in the form of rain or snow. The water then flows back to the ocean or infiltrates the ground, where it can be stored for long periods of time. The cycle is completed when the water evaporates again, returning to the atmosphere.
- 1.2 Define runoff, and the following terms: runoff, infiltration, permeability, and porosity. Runoff is the flow of water over the surface of the land. It is caused by precipitation that falls on the land and does not infiltrate the ground. Infiltration is the process by which water enters the ground. Permeability is the ability of a material to allow water to pass through it. Porosity is the ability of a material to hold water in its pores.
- 1.3 Define drainage basin and divide. A drainage basin is the area of land that drains water into a single body of water, such as a river or lake. A divide is a ridge or high ground that separates two drainage basins. It is the highest point of land between two bodies of water.
- 1.4 Define drainage patterns, dendritic, and rectangular. Dendritic drainage patterns are characterized by a main channel with smaller tributaries that join it at various angles. Rectangular drainage patterns are characterized by a main channel with tributaries that join it at right angles.
- 1.5 Describe how weather, temperature, and precipitation are related to the amount of water that infiltrates the ground. Weather, temperature, and precipitation are all factors that can affect the amount of water that infiltrates the ground. High temperatures and low precipitation can lead to less infiltration, while low temperatures and high precipitation can lead to more infiltration.
- 1.6 Define discharge. Discharge is the volume of water that flows out of a river or lake at a given point in time. It is measured in cubic meters per second.
- 1.7 How does the discharge of a river change during a flood? The discharge of a river increases during a flood. This is because the water level in the river rises, and the velocity of the water increases. The result is a larger volume of water flowing out of the river at a given point in time.
- 1.8 Describe the water table, and the terms: water table, aquifer, and groundwater. The water table is the level of the ground below which the soil is saturated with water. An aquifer is a body of rock or sediment that contains water. Groundwater is the water that is found in the ground below the water table.
