Neuronal Stochastic Variability: Influences on Spiking Dynamics and Network Activity Mark D.

McDonnell,Joshua H. Goldwyn,Benjamin Lindner,2016-07-18 Stochastic fluctuations are intrinsic to and unavoidable at every stage of neural dynamics For example ion channels undergo random conformational changes neurotransmitter release at synapses is discrete and probabilistic and neural networks are embedded in spontaneous background activity The mathematical and computational tool sets contributing to our understanding of stochastic neural dynamics have expanded rapidly in recent years New theories have emerged detailing the dynamics and computational power of the balanced state in recurrent networks At the cellular level novel stochastic extensions to the classical Hodgkin Huxley model have enlarged our understanding of neuronal dynamics and action potential initiation Analytical methods have been developed that allow for the calculation of the firing statistics of simplified phenomenological integrate and fire models taking into account adaptation currents or temporal correlations of the noise This Research Topic is focused on identified physiological internal noise sources and mechanisms By internal we mean variability that is generated by intrinsic biophysical processes This includes noise at a range of scales from ion channels to synapses to neurons to networks The contributions in this Research Topic introduce innovative mathematical analysis and or computational methods that relate to empirical measures of neural activity and illuminate the functional role of intrinsic noise in the brain

Genomics in Aquaculture to Better Understand Species Biology and Accelerate Genetic Progress José Manuel Yáñez, Ross Houston, Scott Newman, 2016-09-15 From a global perspective aquaculture is an activity related to food production with large potential for growth Considering a continuously growing population the efficiency and sustainability of this activity will be crucial to meet the needs of protein for human consumption in the near future However for continuous enhancement of the culture of both fish and shellfish there are still challenges to overcome mostly related to the biology of the cultured species and their interaction with increasingly changing environmental factors Examples of these challenges include early sexual maturation feed meal replacement immune response to infectious diseases and parasites and temperature and salinity tolerance Moreover it is estimated that less than 10% of the total aquaculture production in the world is based on populations genetically improved by means of artificial selection Thus there is considerable room for implementing breeding schemes aimed at improving productive traits having significant economic impact By far the most economically relevant trait is growth rate which can be efficiently improved by conventional genetic selection i e based on breeding values of selection candidates However there are other important traits that cannot be measured directly on selection candidates such as resistance against infectious and parasitic agents and carcass quality traits e g fillet yield and meat color However these traits can be more efficiently improved using molecular tools to assist breeding programs by means of marker assisted selection using a few markers explaining a high proportion of the trait variation or genomic selection using thousands of markers to estimate genomic breeding values The development and implementation of new technologies applied to molecular biology and genomics such as next generation sequencing methods and high throughput genotyping platforms are allowing the rapid increase of availability of genomic resources in aquaculture species These resources will provide powerful tools to the research community and will aid in the determination of the genetic factors involved in several biological aspects of aquaculture species In this regard it is important to establish discussion in terms of which strategies will be more efficient to solve the primary challenges that are affecting aquaculture systems around the world The main objective of this Research Topic is to provide a forum to communicate recent research and implementation strategies in the use of genomics in aquaculture species with emphasis on 1 a better understanding of fish and shellfish biological processes having considerable impact on aquaculture systems and 2 the efficient incorporation of molecular information into breeding programs to accelerate genetic progress of economically relevant traits

Islamic piety projects The author uses ethnographic portraits to introduce us to an array of students many of whom find their aspirational horizon expanded as a result of the madrasa experience Such stories challenge the dominant media s representations of madrasas as outmoded religious institutions Further the author illustrates how the processes of learning unlearning and alternate visions of the future emerge as an unanticipated consequence of young women s engagement with madrasa education
