Ellis,Timothy O'Connor,2009-09-30

How is free will possible in the light of the physical and chemical underpinnings of brain activity and recent neurobiological experiments How can the emergence of complexity in hierarchical systems such as the brain based at the lower levels in physical interactions lead to something like genuine free will The nature of our understanding of free will in the light of present day neuroscience is becoming increasingly important because of remarkable discoveries on the topic being made by neuroscientists at the present time on the one hand and its crucial importance for the way we view ourselves as human beings on the other A key tool in understanding how free will may arise in this context is the idea of downward causation in complex systems happening coterminously with bottom up causation to form an integral whole Top down causation is usually neglected and is therefore emphasized in the other part of the book s title The concept is explored in depth as are the ethical and legal implications of our understanding of free will This book arises out of a workshop held in California in April of 2007 which was chaired by Dr Christof Koch It was unusual in terms of the breadth of people involved they included physicists neuroscientists psychiatrists philosophers and theologians This enabled the meeting and hence the resulting book to attain a rather broader perspective on the issue than is often attained at academic symposia The book includes contributions by Sarah Jayne Blakemore George F R Ellis Christopher D Frith Mark Hallett David Hodgson Owen D Jones Alicia Juarrero J A Scott Kelso Christof Koch Hans K ng Hakwan C Lau Dean Mobbs Nancey Murphy William Newsome Timothy O Connor Sean A Spence and Evan Thompson

In our scientific age an understanding of physics is part of a liberal education Lawyers bankers governors business heads administrators all wise educated people need a lasting understanding of physics so that they can enjoy those contacts with science and scientists that are part of our civilization both materially and intellectually They need knowledge and understanding instead of the feelings all too common that physics is dark and mysterious and that physicists are a strange people with incomprehensible interests Such a sense of understanding science and scientists can be gained neither from sermons on the beauty of science nor from the rigorous courses that colleges have offered for generations when the headache clears away it leaves little but a confused sense of mystery Nor is the need met by survey courses that offer a smorgasbord of tidbit they give science a bad name as a compendium of information or formulas The non scientist needs a course of study that enables him to learn real science and make its own with delight For lasting benefits the intelligent non scientist needs a course of study that enables him to learn genuine science carefully and then encourages him to think about it and use it He needs a carefully selected framework of topics not so many that learning becomes superficial and hurried not so few that he misses the connected nature of scientific work and thinking He must see how scientific knowledge is built up by building some scientific knowledge of his own by reading and discussing and if possible by doing experiments himself He must think his own way through some scientific arguments He must form his own opinion with guidance concerning the parts played by experiment and theory and he must be shown how to develop a taste for good theory He must see several varieties of scientific method at work And above all he must think about science for himself and enjoy that These are the things that this book encourages readers to gain by their own study and thinking Physics for the Inquiring Mind is a book for the inquiring mind of students in college and for other readers who want to grow in scientific wisdom who want to know what physics really is The Edinburgh University Calendar University of Edinburgh,1937 Critical Evaluation of Data in the Physical Sciences United States.
