

- Women over the age of 30 could vote
- Women over 21 who were house holders or married householders could vote.

Around 9 million women gained the vote, usually older, better-off women. All women finally got the vote in 1928.

War work by women was a vital factor in women getting the vote. However, you should remember that the suffragists and suffragettes played their part. As well as supporting the war effort, they continued to campaign for the vote at the same time.

1914-15

When war began, most of the differences between suffragists and suffragettes disappeared. They also raised money for the women who were left behind when their men went off to fight. The Pankhursts concentrated on encouraging young men to volunteer for the army.

1916

Because so many men were fighting for their country, the government decided on a new Representation of the People Act to give all men the vote. Since the government was bringing in a law giving the vote to all men, the suffragettes and suffragists argued that they should give the vote to women in the same law. They publicised the massive contribution of women to the war effort. Their case was also helped when David Lloyd George became Prime Minister in December 1916. He supported female suffrage.

1917-18

By June 1917, most members of the government seemed to accept that some women would get the vote in the new Act. Suffragist leader Millicent Fawcett decided to accept the restriction that not all women would get the vote. The Act was approved by the House of Commons in 1917 and then by the House of Lords in January 1918. Women voted in their first general election in December 1918.

How were civilians in Britain affected by the war?

The First World War was a total war, which meant that the entire population was involved and affected – not just the front-line troops. The government took control of many aspects of life which would never have happened in peacetime.

Recruitment

Between August 1914 and March 1916, 2.5 million men volunteered for the British army. The recruitment campaign launched by the government in 1914 worked far better than was predicted. Around 750,000 men joined up during the first few weeks of the campaign alone. Sometimes, whole groups of friends from one area joined up together as a 'pals' battalion'.

However, despite the steady flow of volunteers, there was a high casualty rate at the front, so more troops were needed. By late 1915, the British government was considering conscription (compulsory military service).

This was highly controversial and a debate raged through the winter of 1915-16. The original proposal was for only unmarried men to be conscripted. However, by May 1916 the needs of war and unrest in Ireland meant that the government was given the power to conscript all men aged 18-41 under the Military Services Act. According to the Act:

- Only men involved in 'reserved occupations', such as munitions work or mining, were exempt from military service.
