SECTION 3

Fire Hazard Analysis Techniques

By David W. Rye
David W. Rye, P.E., is a senior fire protection engineer at the University of Maryland System.

Fire hazard analysis is a systematic process used to identify and evaluate the potential fire hazards in a building or facility. It is a critical component of fire protection engineering and is used to inform the design of fire protection systems. The process involves a detailed review of the building's design, construction, and occupancy, as well as a consideration of the potential fire hazards that may arise from these factors. The results of the analysis are used to develop fire protection strategies that are tailored to the specific needs of the building or facility.
