Answer the following questions:

- 1.1 Describe the hydrologic cycle, components, and processes. The hydrologic cycle is a continuous process that moves water from the atmosphere to the land and oceans, and back to the atmosphere. The cycle is driven by the sun's energy, which causes water to evaporate from the surface of the Earth. The water vapor then condenses into clouds, which eventually release the water as precipitation. The water then flows through the land and oceans, and eventually returns to the atmosphere through evaporation and transpiration.
- 1.2 Define erosion, and the following erosion parts: runoff, channels, meanders, oxbow lakes, and floodplains. Erosion is the process of wearing away the Earth's surface. Runoff is the water that flows over the land surface. Channels are the paths that the water flows through. Meanders are the curves in the channels. Oxbow lakes are the bodies of water that are left behind when a meander is cut off. Floodplains are the areas of land that are flooded during a flood.
- 1.3 Define drainage basin and divide. A drainage basin is the area of land that drains into a single body of water. A divide is the line that separates two drainage basins.
- 1.4 Define drainage patterns, dendritic and rectangular drainage patterns, radial, convergent, and divergent. Drainage patterns are the ways that water flows over the land surface. Dendritic drainage patterns are the most common, and they resemble the branching of a tree. Rectangular drainage patterns are formed by the joints in the rock. Radial drainage patterns are formed by the flow of water from a central point. Convergent drainage patterns are formed by the flow of water into a central point. Divergent drainage patterns are formed by the flow of water away from a central point.
- 1.5 Describe how erosion, transportation, and deposition are affected by grain size and velocity. Erosion is the process of wearing away the Earth's surface. Transportation is the process of moving the eroded material. Deposition is the process of dropping the eroded material. Grain size and velocity are the two factors that most affect these processes.
- 1.6 Define alluvium. Alluvium is the material that is deposited by a river or stream. It is composed of sand, silt, and clay.
- 1.7 Describe how the surface is affected by meandering, oxbow lakes, and floodplains. Meandering is the process of the river changing its course. Oxbow lakes are the bodies of water that are left behind when a meander is cut off. Floodplains are the areas of land that are flooded during a flood.
- 1.8 Describe the mechanisms of erosion: hydraulic action, abrasion, solution, and deflation. Hydraulic action is the process of the water breaking apart the rock. Abrasion is the process of the rock rubbing against the rock. Solution is the process of the rock dissolving in the water. Deflation is the process of the wind blowing away the loose material.
- 1.9 Define the different types of sediment: clastic, organic, and biogenic. Clastic sediment is the material that is eroded from the Earth's surface. Organic sediment is the material that is made from the remains of plants and animals. Biogenic sediment is the material that is made from the remains of plants and animals.
