Labour in Globalising Asian Corporations, 2006 Strategic Coupling
 Henry Wai-chung Yeung, 2016-04-22. In Strategic Coupling, Henry Wai-chung Yeung examines economic development and state-firm relations in East Asia, focusing in particular on South Korea, Taiwan and Singapore. As a result of the massive changes of the last twenty-five years, new explanations must be found for the economic success and industrial transformation in the region. State-assisted startups and incubator firms in East Asia have become major players in the manufacture of products with a global reach. Taiwan's Hon Hai Precision has assembled more than 500 million iPhones for instance, and South Korea's Samsung provides the iPhone's semiconductor chips and retina displays. Drawing on extensive interviews with top executives and senior government officials, Yeung argues that since the late 1980s many East Asian firms have outgrown their home states and are no longer dependent on state support, as a result the developmental state has lost much of its capacity to steer and direct industrialization. We cannot read the performance of national firms as a direct outcome of state action. Yeung calls for a thorough renovation of the still dominant view that states are the primary engine of industrial transformation. He stresses action by national firms and traces various global production networks to incorporate both firm-specific activities and the international political economy. He identifies two sets of dynamics in these national-global articulations known as strategic coupling: coevolution in the confluence of state-firm and global production networks and the various strategies pursued by East Asian firms to attain competitive positions in the global marketplace. Korea Briefing Kong Dan Oh, 2000. While mainly focusing on the Kim Dae Jung era, the essays in this book examine persistent problems and new opportunities in Korean politics, economy and culture. In 1997, Kim Ae Jung was elected to head the government of the Seventh Republic after 30 years in opposition.

intra regional trade Banks and other financial institutions quickly become insolvent and heavily indebted industrial firms went bankrupt Many of these firms were affiliated with the business groups of this region yet most groups did not immediately collapse indeed they proved remarkably robust some surviving and even prospering This book examines these East Asian business groups and their subsequent restructuring following the Asian Crisis East Asian nations embarked on very different trajectories to this common external shock The Asian Crisis affected the inter relationships among the socio cultural environment the state and the market of each country quite differently and had distinct effects on the operations of these countries business groups This slow yet divergent pattern of development provides evidence against theories of rapid global convergence Yet East Asian business groups face an uncertain future Foreign investors influence has increased substantially since the crisis as East Asian governments had to accommodate their demands to keep attracting foreign capital Governments supervise banks more closely and have loosened restrictions on mergers and hostile takeovers further strengthening the discipline of the market Various entry barriers that had inhibited foreign multinationals from competing in national markets were lifted exposing business groups to intensified foreign competition Under these new conditions business groups in East Asia should reconfigure their business structures and adjust their corporate governance systems to regain momentum for further growth Business groups will continue to be important vehicles for the sustained future growth of this region and this book presents a substantial amount of new data on this which will be of interest to academics researchers and advanced students of East Asian business and business practitioners working within the region
