New Media, Campaigning and the 2008 Facebook Election Thomas J. Johnson,David D. Perlmutter,2013-12-16 Some political observers dubbed the 2008 presidential campaign as the Facebook Election Barack Obama in particular employed social media such as blogs Twitter Flickr Digg YouTube MySpace and Facebook to run a grassroots style campaign The Obama campaign was keenly aware that voters particularly the young are not simply consumers of information but conduits of information as well They often replaced the professional filter of traditional media with a social one Social media allowed candidates to do electronically what previously had to be done through shoe leather and phone banks contact volunteers and donors and schedule and promote events The 2008 Election marked a new era where the candidates no longer had complete control over their campaign message The individual viewer in a campaign crowd with a cell phone can record a candidate s gaffe post it on YouTube or Flickr and within days millions will be gasping or guffawing The traditional campaign with its centralized power and planning although not dead now coexists with an unstructured digital democracy New Media Campaigning and the 2008 Facebook Election examines the way social media changed how candidates campaigned how the media covered the election and how voters received information This book is based on a special issue of Mass Communication Society

Activism in the Middle East Jon Nordenson, 2017-03-17 Does the internet facilitate social and political change or even democratization in the Middle East Despite existing research on this subject there is still no consensus on the importance of social media and online platforms or on how we are to understand their influence This book provides empirical analysis of the day to day use of online platforms by activists in Egypt and Kuwait The research evaluates the importance of online platforms for effecting change and establishes a specific framework for doing so Egypt and Kuwait were chosen because since the mid 2000s they have been the most prominent Arab countries in terms of online and offline activism In the context of Kuwait Jon Nordenson examines the oppositional youth groups who fought for a constitutional democratic monarchy in the emirate In Egypt focus surrounds the groups and organizations working against sexual violence and sexual harassment Online Activism in the Middle East shows how and why online platforms are used by activists and identifies the crucial features of successful online campaigns Egypt and Kuwait are revealed to be authoritarian contexts but where the challenges and possibilities faced by activists are quite different The comparative nature of this research therefore exposes the context specific usage of online platforms separating this from the more general features of online activism Nordenson demonstrates the power of online activism to create an essential counterpublic that can challenge an authoritarian state and enable excluded groups to fight in ways that are far more difficult to suppress than a demonstration
