Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The control group consisted of 10 men who did not participate in any physical activity during the study. The training group consisted of 10 men who participated in a 10-week training program. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions were performed at a heart rate of 150 beats per minute. The HR and HRR were measured at the beginning and end of the study. The results showed that the training group had a significant increase in HR and HRR compared to the control group. The HR increased from 70 to 80 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 30 to 40 beats per minute. The control group showed no significant change in HR and HRR. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the HR and HRR of sedentary middle-aged men.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or natural light at night. To reduce the risk of circadian rhythm disruption, it is recommended that the amount of artificial light be reduced to the lowest level possible.
- Artificial lights that emit red light with a wavelength of 620 nm or longer are recommended, as the length of the spectrum may be reduced by filtering out the blue light spectrum.
- The use of natural light during the day may help to regulate the circadian rhythm. The presence of natural light during the day may help to regulate the circadian rhythm.
- Natural light is not recommended for the use of artificial light.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. A rise in the price of the output will cause a producer to produce more output, and a fall in the price of the output will cause a producer to produce less output.

- 20 Do not test the power switch on the immersion pump, or any other part of the submersible pump, as this may cause the pump to start to rotate. Therefore the power specifications on the label on the motor and on the power switch should be used on the product for voltage and amperage information.
- 21 Do not touch the pump or the power switch while they are in operation. Do not touch the pump or the power switch if the pump is stopped. The pump has a fan and a fan guard. The fan guard is attached to the pump and is not a part of the pump. Do not touch the fan guard while the pump is running.
