Thinking about Oneself Kristina Musholt, 2015-07-31 A novel theory of self consciousness and its development that integrates philosophical considerations with recent findings in the empirical sciences In this book Kristina Musholt offers a novel theory of self consciousness understood as the ability to think about oneself Traditionally self consciousness has been central to many philosophical theories More recently it has become the focus of empirical investigation in psychology and neuroscience Musholt draws both on philosophical considerations and on insights from the empirical sciences to offer a new account of self consciousness the ability to think about ourselves that is at the core of what makes us human Examining theories of nonconceptual content developed in recent work in the philosophy of cognition Musholt proposes a model for the gradual transition from self related information implicit in the nonconceptual content of perception and other forms of experience to the explicit representation of the self in conceptual thought A crucial part of this model is an analysis of the relationship between self consciousness and intersubjectivity Self consciousness and awareness of others Musholt argues are two sides of the same coin After surveying the philosophical problem of self consciousness the notion of nonconceptual content and various proposals for the existence of nonconceptual self consciousness Musholt argues for a non self
