The Memories of Slavery Complete Collection is an unparalleled anthology that captures the multifaceted narratives of slavery and resilience. This comprehensive collection brings together a wide range of literary styles from poignant autobiographical accounts to incisive essays and thrilling narratives. The thematic richness is reflected in the diversity of experiences offering profound insight into the era's social and political intricacies. Standout works provide compelling depictions of both the brutality of slavery and the indomitable spirit of those who resisted and survived. The contributing authors, including trailblazers like Frederick Douglass, Sojourner Truth, and Harriet Jacobs, provide an invaluable mosaic of perspectives that illuminate the historical and cultural contexts of their times. This anthology aligns with key historical movements, especially the abolitionist and civil rights movements, revealing the varied voices that speak to the shared struggle for freedom and dignity. The remarkable range of contributors, from those firsthand accounts by slaves to influential figures in abolitionism and beyond, collectively enriches the tapestry of human resilience and justice. For those eager to explore the depths of this tumultuous and defining chapter in history, the Memories of Slavery Complete Collection offers an unparalleled educational journey. Dive into a trove of perspectives that capture the complexities of human endurance and the enduring fight for equality. This anthology is an essential resource for its breadth of insights and the dialogue it fosters between different authors' works, each offering a unique lens through which to view and understand the caustic legacies of slavery and the hope for a more equitable future.

Memories of Childhood's Slavery Days Annie L. Burton, 2015-10-03

A Powerful True Story of a Child in Slavery on a Southern Plantation. Memories of Childhood's Slavery Days. Recollections of a Happy Life By Annie L. Burton. The memory of my happy care-free childhood days on the plantation with my little white and black companions is often with me. Neither master nor mistress nor neighbors had time to bestow a thought upon us for the great Civil War was raging. That great event in American history was a matter wholly outside the realm of our childish interests. Of course we heard our elders discuss the various events of the great struggle but it meant nothing to us. On the plantation there were ten white children and fourteen colored children. Our days were spent roaming about from plantation to plantation not knowing or caring what things were going on in the great world outside our little realm. Planting time and harvest time were happy days for us. How often at the harvest time the planters discovered cornstalks missing from the ends of the rows and blamed the crows We were called the little fairy devils To the sweet potatoes and peanuts and sugar cane we also helped ourselves Those slaves that were not married served the food from the great house and about half past eleven they would send the older children with food to the workers in the fields Of course I followed and before we got to the fields we had eaten the food nearly all up When the workers returned home they complained and we were whipped The slaves got their allowance every Monday night of molasses meat corn meal and a kind of flour called dredgings or shorts Perhaps this allowance would be gone before the next Monday night in which case the slaves would steal hogs and chickens Then would come the whipping post Master himself never whipped his slaves this was left to the overseer

Transatlantic Memories of Slavery: Remembering the Past, Changing the Future Elisa Bordin ,Anna Scacchi,2015-08-10 While the memorialization of slavery has generated an impressive number of publications relatively few studies deal with this subject from a transnational transdisciplinary and transracial standpoint As a historical phenomenon that crossed borders and traversed national communities and ethnic groups producing alliances that did not overlap with received identities slavery as well as its memory call for comparative investigations that may bring to light aspects obscured by the predominant visibility of US American and British narratives of the past This study addresses the memory of slavery from a transnational perspective It brings into dialogue texts and practices from the transatlantic world offering comparative analyses which interlace the variety of memories emerging in diverse national contexts and fields of study and shed light on the ways local countermemories have interacted with and responded to hegemonic narratives of slavery The inclusion of Brazil and the French English and Spanish Caribbean alongside the United States and Europe and the variety of investigative approaches ranging from cinema popular culture and visual culture studies to anthropology and literary studies expand the current understanding of the slave past and how it is reimagined today This fascinating book brings freshness to the topic by considering objects of investigation which have so far remained marginal in the academic debate such as heroic memorials civic landscape white family sagas Young Adult literature of slavery Latin American telenovelas and filmic narrations within and beyond Hollywood What emerges is a multifarious set of memories which keep changing according to generation race gender nation and political urgency and indicate the advancing of a dynamic mobilized memorialization of slavery willing to move beyond mourning towards a more militant stand for justice This is an important book for those interested in African American American and Latin American studies and working across literature cinema visual arts and public culture It will also be useful to public official and civil servants interested in the question of slavery and its present memory

Recollections of My Slavery Days William Henry Singleton,1999 William Henry Singleton was born in 10 August 1843 in New Bern North Carolina His father was probably William G Singleton 1823 1881 and his mother was Lettice Nelson He enlisted in the Union Army in 1863 He married Maria Wanton 1849 1898 in 1868 Their daughter Lulu 1884 1856 married Collins L Fitch 1182 1951 in 1905 They had eight children Includes Hall Nelson and related families The Waterman's Song David S. Cecelski, 2012-01-01 The first major study of slavery in the maritime South The Waterman's Song chronicles the world of slave and free black fishermen pilots rivermen sailors ferrymen and other laborers who from the colonial era through Reconstruction plied the vast inland waters of North Carolina from the Outer Banks to the upper reaches of tidewater rivers Demonstrating the vitality and significance of this local African American maritime culture David Cecelski also reveals its connections to the Afro Caribbean the relatively egalitarian work culture of seafaring men who visited nearby ports and the revolutionary political tides that coursed throughout the black Atlantic Black maritime laborers played an essential role in local abolitionist activity slave insurrections and other antislavery activism They also boatlifted thousands of slaves to freedom during the Civil War But most important Cecelski says they carried an insurgent democratic vision born in the maritime districts of the slave South into the political maelstrom of the Civil War and Reconstruction Recollections of Slavery A. Runaway A Runaway Slave, 2016-01-01 Recollections of Slavery By A Runaway Slave The True Story of Sugar House Charleston South Carolina The Slave Torture House A Slave Narrative Serialized in The Emancipator in 1838 and then carried me to the Sugar House in Charleston As soon as we got there they made me strip off all my clothes and searched me to see if I had anything hid They found nothing but a knife After that they drove me into the yard where I staid till night As soon as master's father Mordecai Cohen heard that I was caught he sent word to his son and the next morning master came He said well you staid in the woods as long as you could now which will you do stay here or go home I told him I did nt know Then he said if I would not go home willingly I might stay there two or three months He said Mr Wolf give this fellow fifty lashes and put him on the tread mill I m going North and shall not be back till July and you may keep him till that time When they had got me fixed in the rope good and the cap on my face they called Mr Jim Wolf and told him they had me ready He came and stood till they had done whipping me One drew me up tight by the rope and the other whipped and Wolf felt of my skin to tell when it was tight enough They whipped till he stamped Then they rubbed brine in and put on my old clothes which were torn into rags while I was in the swamp and put me into a cell The cells are little narrow rooms about five feet wide with a little hole up high to let in air I was kept in the cell till next day when they put me on the tread mill and kept me there three days and then back in the cell for three days And then I was whipped and put on the tread mill again and they did so with me for a fortnight just as Cohen had directed He told them to whip me twice a week till they had given me two hundred lashes My back when they went to whip me would be full of scabs and they whipped them off till I bled so that my clothes were all wet Many a night I have laid up there in the Sugar House and scratched them off by the handful There was a little girl named Margaret that one day did not work to suit the overseer and he lashed her with his cow skin She was about seven years old As soon as he had gone she ran away to go to her mother who was at work on the turnpike road digging ditches and filling up ruts made by the wagons She had to go through a swamp and tried to cross the creek in the middle of the swamp the way she saw her mother go every night It had rained a great deal for several days and the creek was 15 or 16 feet wide and deep enough for horses to swim it When night came she did not come back and her mother had not seen her The overseer cared very little about it for she was only a child and not worth a great deal Her mother and the rest of the hands hunted after her that night with pine torches and the next night after they had done work and every night for a week and two Sundays all day They would not let us hunt in the day time any other day Her mother mourned a good deal about her when she was in the camp among the people but dared not let the overseer know it because he would whip her In about two weeks the water had dried up a good deal and then a white man came in and said that somebody s little nigger was dead down in the brook We thought it must be Margaret and afterwards went down and found her She had fallen from the log bridge into the water Something had eat all her flesh off and the only way we knew her was by her dress

The North Carolina Roots of African American

Literature William L. Andrews, 2006-12-08 The first African American to publish a book in the South the author of the first female slave narrative in the United States the father of black nationalism in America these and other founders of African American literature have a surprising connection to one another they all hailed from the state of North Carolina This collection of poetry fiction autobiography and essays showcases some of the best work of eight influential African American writers from North Carolina during the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries In his introduction William L Andrews explores the reasons why black North Carolinians made such a disproportionate contribution in quantity and lasting quality to African American literature as compared to that of other southern states with larger African American populations The authors in this anthology parlayed both the advantages and disadvantages of their North Carolina beginnings into sophisticated perspectives on the best and the worst of which humanity in both the South and the North was capable They created an African American literary tradition unrivaled by that of any other state in the South Writers included here are Charles W Chesnutt Anna Julia Cooper David Bryant Fulton George Moses Horton Harriet Jacobs Lunsford Lane Moses Roper and David Walker

Memories of Childhood's Slavery Days Annie L. Burton, 2020-07-07 Memories of Childhood s Slavery Days is an autobiographical account of Annie L Burton African American memoirist from Alabama Burton was born into slavery on a plantation near Clayton and was liberated in childhood by the Union Army Her father was a white man from Liverpool England who owned a nearby plantation and died in Alabama in 1875 Moving North in 1879 she was among the earliest Black emigrants there from the South during the post Civil War era supporting herself in Boston and New York by working as a laundress and as a cook In her autobiography published in 1909 Burton relates that the end of slavery not only signaled a time for African Americans to start a new life but also a time to redefine their lives
