Recruitment Of Health Professionals From Abroad:

Recruitment of Health Professionals from Abroad Bikal Dhungel, 2014-11-18 Seminar paper from the year 2014 in the subject Sociology Medicine and Health grade 1.0 University of Aberdeen College of Life Sciences and Medicine language English abstract Scarcity of Healthcare professionals especially Doctors and Nurses is a worldwide phenomenon On one hand demographic factors like population growth is bringing problems with it for example the demand of more healthcare on the other hand the ageing population also comes up with age related diseases like Alzheimer's and Dementia If Health Technology fails to develop further it is obvious that we will have to face difficult challenges in the future To meet the demand of more healthcare professionals countries like the UK are very dependent on foreign countries that supply such people like nurses from some East Asian countries The scarcity of Healthcare Professionals is also a big problem for developing countries Population growth and ageing not only generates the scarcity of health professionals but also brings the need to expand health infrastructures For example the healthcare institutions and health workforce that exist today were designed when the size of population was lower So today with higher growth of population the expansion of health infrastructures as well as health personnel is vital to meet the demand and to maintain the quality of healthcare

Recruitment and Retention of Health Care Professionals in the Nordic Countries Nordic Council of Ministers, 2014-09-17 The demographic trends and financial constraints in the Nordic countries and all over Europe are posing challenges especially in the health care sectors The rising number of elderly with new diseases as well as new technology and inventions create a growing demand for health care services and health care personnel The aim of this report is to establish a clearer picture of the challenges in the future health care sectors in the Nordic countries especially in terms of lack of health care personnel and the strategies and initiatives implemented for recruitment and retention of personnel The International Migration of Health Workers R. Shah, 2010-09-30 Experts from ethicists and political philosophers to clinicians and trade unionists seek answers to a number of key ethical questions to further a deeper understanding of the ethics of health worker migration Global Migration, Gender, and Health Professional Credentials Margaret Walton-Roberts, 2022-03-01 Bringing together diverse approaches and case studies of international health worker migration Global Migration Gender and Health Professional Credentials critically reimagines how we conceptualize the transfer of value embodied in internationally educated health professionals IEHPs This volume provides key insights into the economic and feminist concepts of global value transmission the complexity of health worker migration and the gendered and intersectional intricacies involved in the workplace integration of immigrant health care workers The contributions to this edited collection uncover the multitude of actors who play a role in creating transmitting transforming and utilizing the value embedded in international health migrants Mobility of Health Professionals Frits Tjadens, Caren Weilandt, Josef Eckert, 2012-11-28 This book on mobility of health professionals reviews analyses and summarises published information and data as well as collected interview data from stake holders including politicians policy makers health service managers and migrant health workers It is based on the research carried out under the umbrella of the EU funded project Mobility of Health Professionals MoHProf The partners involved in the MoHProf project gathered evidence from 25 countries around basic questions and knowledge gaps relating to the international migration of health professionals which involved an analysis of migration flows and evaluation of policies addressing migration This book provides a comprehensive description and analysis of the mobility streams the motives and driving forces behind them and the impact on and challenges for health systems and draws conclusions and provides recommendations for future strategic planning monitoring and the management of mobility of health professionals as well as further research and policy development needs

Migrant Health Professionals and the Global Labour Market Radha Adhikari, 2019-10-29 This book offers a fresh perspective on gender debates in Nepal and analyses how the international migration of the first generation of professional female Nepali nurses has been a catalyst for social change With unprecedented access to study participants in Nepal the source country following them and their networks in the UK the destination country this ethnographic study explores Nepali nurses migration journeys relocation experiences and their international migration dreams and aspirations It illustrates how migrant nurses strive to manage social and professional difficulties as they work towards achieving their ultimate migration aims The book shows that nursing shortages and international nurse migration are issues of gender on a global scale and that the current trend of privatisation in health systems makes the labour market vulnerable and stimulates international migration of health professionals Arguing that international nurse migration is an integral part of the globalisation of health the author highlights key policy strategies that are useful for global nursing and health workforce management A well informed and much needed study of nurse migration in the global healthcare market this book will be of interest to professionals and academics working in nursing studies health and social care studies gender and international migration studies and global health studies as well as South Asian studies

Geographies of Health and Development Rachel Bezner Kerr, Isaac Luginaah, 2016-03-03 The geographies of health and development is an emerging sub discipline tying in with many of the conceptual theoretical and practical components of other disciplines working in health health care economics and international development Spatially and theoretically grounded in geography this collection offers a fresh perspective on the dialectic relationships between health and development Health problems in a developing context take on much higher rates of prevalence as a result of the varied cultural structural and economic vulnerabilities of the people they impact This book begins by exploring some of the circumstances surrounding the distinctive health inequities currently facing many developing countries including malaria maternal mortality and HIV AIDS This is followed by a discussion of how matters of physical access and human resource issues and perhaps most importantly the challenges of financing together shape the access and utilization of health care Examining how the environment interacts to influence the health of the people that live there the next section includes discussion around challenges of food in security and the importance of clean and uncontaminated water for health Finally the book explores the influence of globalization on health specifically within the urban environment against the backdrop of global health policy

- Strengthening Health Systems in Developing Countries Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: International Development Committee, 2014-09-12 Better health is a basic human right and an end in itself A healthy population is also essential to development Recent years have seen some rapid improvements in health partly driven by the Millennium Development Goals and the large international funds set up to accelerate progress towards them However these improvements have at times been achieved despite the poor state of health systems in many developing countries Stronger health systems will be required to ensure efficiency tackle growing challenges such as non communicable diseases and progress towards self sufficiency DFID has long had a good reputation for health system strengthening and this is reflected in its own work But DFID now relies on international partners which do not all share this reputation in an increasing number of countries and to manage an ever greater proportion of its expenditure We recommend that DFID reviews in each country whether its funding arrangements enable its health systems strengthening objectives to be met Assessing the effectiveness and value for money of health system strengthening work by DFID and its international partners is more difficult than it ought to be Expenditure and performance figures are not published and the research base is inadequate This must change The UK has one of the best health systems in the world but DFID makes only limited use of it We call on DFID to work with the NHS in expanding volunteering schemes for doctors and nurses and making more use of NHS finance and management skills

A Fair Deal on Talent - Fostering Just Migration Governance Bertelsmann Stiftung, 2015-05-12 If well managed migration generates benefits for migrants their countries of origin and the countries they settle in For migrants it can help them expand their skill sets and improve their standard of living For destination countries it can alleviate demographic pressures and foster cultural diversity For origin countries it can bring benefits associated with remittances and knowledge transfers However in reality these benefits are rarely achieved as migration policy failures frequently lead to suboptimal or even negative outcomes Realizing the full potential of migration therefore demands we foster a paradigm shift toward the fair management of migration Fair migration is driven by the desire to achieve a triple win for migrants destination countries and origin countries In addition to outlining the key challenges and opportunities associated with fair migration this volume examines the good practices of a variety of countries and institutions which highlight aspects of fair migration The volume concludes with policy recommendations for effective and fair migration policymaking at the national and international levels As a conceptual and empirical contribution to both national and international debates on managing migration this volume aims to enrich discussions among policymakers business leaders civil society actors and scholars alike
