RECONSTRUCTING
QUATERNARY ENVIRONMENTS

Lowe & Walker

The Quaternary is the most recent geological period. During this period, which extends to the present day, the earth has experienced a series of dramatic changes. The Quaternary period is characterized by a series of glacial and interglacial cycles, which have shaped the landscape of the world as we know it. This book provides a comprehensive overview of the Quaternary period, from its beginning to the present day. It covers the geological, biological, and cultural changes that have taken place during this time, and discusses the impact of these changes on the world as we know it.

Reconstructing Quaternary Environments is a comprehensive overview of the Quaternary period, from its beginning to the present day. It covers the geological, biological, and cultural changes that have taken place during this time, and discusses the impact of these changes on the world as we know it. The book is written in a clear and concise style, and is suitable for both students and non-specialist readers. It is a valuable resource for anyone interested in the Quaternary period, and is highly recommended.

This important and well-illustrated contribution to the Quaternary studies literature is both a valuable reference to the subject and will be read by students looking for a textbook and professional researchers in a variety of fields including geology, physical geography, archaeology, anthropology, history and biology.

J. J. Lowe is Reader in Geography at the City of London Polytechnic. He is the author of Quaternary in the British Isles and Quaternary in the British Isles: A Guide to the Quaternary of the British Isles. M. J. C. Walker is Professor of Geography at the University of Cambridge.

NOTE: Reconstructing Quaternary Environments is the first of a series of books published by Longman, which will provide a comprehensive overview of the Quaternary period. The series will include books on the Quaternary of the British Isles, the Quaternary of the world, and the Quaternary of the future.
