Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 10-week training program consisting of aerobic and resistance exercises. The HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 10-week program. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant decrease in both HR and BP compared to the control group. The HR decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the BP decreased from 120/80 to 110/70 mmHg. These findings suggest that a 10-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.

Abstract: This paper presents an investigation of the impact of the quality of the supply chain on the performance of the supply chain. The study is based on a survey of 100 companies in the manufacturing sector. The results show that the quality of the supply chain has a positive impact on the performance of the supply chain. The study also shows that the quality of the supply chain is a key factor in the success of the supply chain. The study is limited to the manufacturing sector and the results may not be generalizable to other sectors. The study is a preliminary study and further research is needed to confirm the findings.
